Students resolve conflicts

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

A successful team of Romulus eighth graders have been busy for the past five to six months solving growing conflicts among their peers. Maxine Reed, conflict resolution counselor, reported more than 50 cases have been heard by the student peer group in recent months and possibly only one or two have not been settled positively.

"We handle many issues here, except for possible suicides and drug use. Those issues we sent to professionals."

- Maxine Reed

Reed said she gives each peer volunteer 16 to 20 hours of training prior to their hearing any conflict matters, explaining they need to learn the art of listening, problem solving and communication skills. The goal of the program is to develop positive attitudes in local students, so that they can solve conflicts without violence.

Many of the issues start off school property, she said, but if there is any danger that the problem could spread to the schools we will consider it.

"We handle many issues here, except for possible suicides and drug use," Reed said. "Those issues we send to professionals."

Many of the issues dealt with by the student peer unit include: "he said, she said" matters, boyfriend and girlfriend relationships and problems relating to student-teacher relationships."

We make the teachers aware of the problems, but never reveal what is actually discussed at the hearings—that remains totally confidential, Reed said.

A check back with the impacted students at a later date has shown that they feel positively served by such a peer group and actually are extremely interested in returning to it if the need arises, rather than to consult an assistant principal, Reed said.

While this is the first year, she has worked with the middle school students, Reed said, the program has been on-going at the high school. "There we enlist peer volunteers from the 10th, 11th and 12 grades. At this level we have heard about 1,000 cases and only considered about six as unresolved," Reed concluded.

Westwood sues Mega Conference

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

A $25 million lawsuit has been filed in Wayne County Circuit Court by the father of a student athlete who attends Robichaud High accusing the Mega Conference of racial discrimination and depriving the student of opportunities guaranteed to him by the equal protection clause of the state and federal constitutions.

A second lawsuit in support of the student's claims and also seeking damages from the 22-member school conference was filed simultaneously by the Westwood School Board of Education.

"The (Westwood) board of education unanimously has determined that the best interests of all of the student body is to take legal action without any further delay," said Daniel G. Ferrera, attorney for the plaintiffs.

"The reason for this action is that the complaint of violation of the civil rights act has been pending now for three years, and although the defendants have been determined to be in violation of the state and federal civil rights act we have made no progress to resolve this very critical issue.

Ferrera stressed that the Westwood School District has incurred huge financial losses due to the problem that athletic teams must travel to far-off cities such as Grand Rapids and Bay City in order to compete "when there are neighboring schools that could do just as well."

Chief Judge Joseph Rashid has scheduled an April 21 meeting to hear the extraordinary writ of mandamus. The lawsuit has been assigned to Circuit Court Judge Susan D. Borman.

Formed in February of 1992, and in its second year of competition, the Mega Conference includes such local schools as Wayne Memorial, Belleville, and is the product of a merger of some 22 schools from three interscholastic athletic conference.

Romulus, whose school board came to an out-of-court settlement a year ago with the conference, will join the Mega Conference in the fall of 1995. According to the lawsuit, officials representing the Mega Conference "established the Michigan Mega Conference Athletic League, all predominately white, while intentionally excluding all the members of the Suburban Athletic League, predominately black whose membership also includes Inkster and Robichaud High School.

Even though the Mega Conference was ordered to admit Suburban Athletic Conference affiliates into their ranks, "on or about July 14, 1994, the Superintendents of the Defendant districts did have a meeting to discuss the "absurd" finding of the Federal Office of Civil Rights, and again refused to admit the Plaintiff District in the Conference," according to the lawsuit.

In a letter to Ferrera from the United States Department of Education, signed by Kenneth A. Mines, the Office of Civil Rights' probe determined that "because SAC schools have been unable to schedule interscholastic athletic events against appropriate competition in the suburban Detroit area, SAC schools have incurred additional expenses in providing SAC students to travel to and from interscholastic events outside of the Detroit area. SAC athletes are also denied the benefits of Conference awards and recognition."

Inkster High veteran basketball coach Monte Dennard, a former prep cage star at Robichaud, said it is ludicrous that his teams should have to travel hundreds of miles to play games when such schools such as Crestwood, Annapolis are down the street,

Drastic action needed to hike MEAP scores

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Drastic action needs to be taken by the Romulus School District following the repeated low scoring by many students in Michigan Education Assessment Program (MEAP) tests, Superintendent Dr. William Bedell told board members Monday night.

Bedell shared a short video tape of a "direct instruction" educational program that has proved successful in a 99 percent poor school district in Houston, Texas.

"We don't need to adopt a program this strict," Bedell said, "but it is at least a good point to begin our conversation about change."

The school, Wesley Elementary, and its principal Thaddeus Lott, attract about 30 visitors a day from across the U.S. One of those visitors recently was Bedell, along with four members of the Michigan State Board of Education and other educational representatives from around the state.

The Lott program has raised the previously poor educational rates at Wesley Elementary to a point now where the school is listed in the top 25 percent profile across the state of Texas.

The heavily regimented school program, created by disciplinarian Lott during the last 17 years, instills learning as a top priority among the students. The video shows that students quickly learn the names and capitals of all 50 states.

In the school's financially leaner years this was accomplished without the use of maps, but now takes on even a stronger meaning as the district can now afford to supply students with maps.

Probably one of the most startling elements of the Wesley Elementary curriculum (particularly in this non-reading generation of students nationally) is that fifth graders there read and enjoy works of dramatist William Shakespeare and novelist John Steinbeck.

While critics of the program call it "old fashioned" with its rapid fire drills of repetition, supporters call it successful particularly in the area of educational testing scores.

It also has resulted in lower drop out rates and higher graduation and college entry scores. The program has also gained the support of the parents of the students, as is evidenced by the clothing and demeanor of the students in the classrooms.

Wesley Elementary's success was so strong that critics claimed the district must be "cheating," but numerous investigations by Texas educational organizations can find no evidence of cheating.

Lott, a tough-talking Afro-American educator, continues to claim "brains do not come in black or white varieties. It is just that too many in society today have too low expectations of poor people."

The teaching concept is sure to draw fire from some teachers and parents, but local educational leaders say "maybe that is what it takes to create positive change."

Council won't press action on Raspberry house issue

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

A simmering battle over a house veteran Councilman Jimmie Raspberry obtained in 1990 broke out into a full fledged war that ended with an official stalemate Monday night.

The first shots were fired by R.P. Lilly, a vocal member of the Romulus Environmentalists Caring About People (RECAP), as he demanded to know who paid to move the home Raspberry now owns and inquired if the councilman pulled all the necessary permits involved in owning and occupying the house.

Lilly, who said he was inquiring as a taxpayer not a RECAP member, said several weeks ago he turned over to the City Council the copies of all the permits he drew after recently moving a home of his own to a new location.

Fellow Councilman William Wadsworth said he was tired of hearing of this issue month after month and asked if just a house certificate and report from the city Building Department if any permits had not been obtained by Raspberry could be furnished the council.

Raspberry said he would only agree to at if other council members faced the same scrutiny.

Wadsworth then made a motion that the council ask David Paul, city building department director, to file a report to the council on the Raspberry house issue.

The motion was supported by Councilman Michael Prybyla.

Then Councilman Noah "Pete" Bergeron entered the fray complaining that it appeared to be political grandstanding.

"This information can be obtained by anyone just seeking it at the building department office," Bergeron said. "I'm appalled by the politics involved in this case."

Councilman Ellis Pennington counted in by stating, "Our building department re-

"I don't have to answer this man, he is not a resident."

cords are open. If RECAP has some proof that someone is doing something wrong, they can check it out very simply.

"They should not ask one councilman to vote to investigate another councilman," Pennington said.

Wadsworth quickly retorted, "Mr. Raspberry is not a crook. But I would like to put this issue behind us."

Lilly shot back, "I'm not here as a RECAP member, I'm here as a taxpayer. If I had to make these permit payments, so should Raspberry."

As in the past Raspberry countered, "I don't have to answer this man, he is not a resident. General Motors pays taxes, but they don't come down to agitate us."

Acting Mayor pro tem Randolph Gear then asked for a roll call vote on the issue. Gear, Wadsworth and Prybyla voted for the Building Department report to be filed, while Raspberry, Pennington and Bergeron voted against it. A tie vote killed the motion.

Mayor pro tem Mary Ann Banks was absent from the meeting.

A second RECAP member, Dan Buzzard, invited the three pro-well settlement councilmen, Pennington, Bergeron and Raspberry, to attend an upcoming RECAP meeting on March 7 to explain their positions.

Pennington and Bergeron agreed to attend the meeting if it was conducted in a friendly atmosphere. Raspberry said he would "think about" the offer.

Belleville resident awarded top prize

Belleville resident Phyllis Blanck was the big winner in the Michigan Community Newspapers (MCN) Subscription Sweepstakes.

Blanck won a $2,500 gift certificate to Furniture Mart. The gift certificate was one of many prizes awarded in the extravaganza which included a 19-inch color television, dining room set and a barbecue grill.

Hundreds of residents from throughout western Wayne County were eligible to enter the Sweepstakes which ended Jan. 15.

An Open Letter to Romulus Taxpayers and Mayor Beverly McAnally . . .

In further response to the political flyer that Beverly McAnally mailed to many of you a few weeks ago:

FIRST: To the hundreds of taxpayers who have called us so far and asked for information pertaining to the FACTS concerning our deepwell and our long relationship with the City – especially with Beverly McAnally – THANK YOU!

SECOND: Although we refuse to get into a name-calling contest with Beverly McAnally, we feel that we must respond to one of her more ridiculous statements: "I did and still do think we need better ways to dispose of our industrial and domestic wastes and since they were talking about 'non-hazardous' waste like dishwasher detergents, household cleaning products, etc., this method then sounded like a good idea, and I said so." In other words, she wants you to believe that when EDS presented its project to her in the summer and fall of 1990, EDS was only talking about "NON-HAZARDOUS" waste.

How can Beverly McAnally make such a ridiculous statement when:

- FACT The accounting firm of Pohl, Walsh and Goode, P.C., furnished the City with Financial Projections of the City's Royalty dated August 30, 1990, which stated, "EDS estimates that 60% of the waste liquids injected (into the Well) will be classified as HAZARDOUS and 40% as non-hazardous" and that 76% of the Royalty would come from disposal of "HAZARDOUS" wastes. These projections were delivered to Beverly McAnally personally in the fall of 1990 and were also sent to the City Council.

- FACT EDS sent Beverly McAnally a letter, dated September 20, 1990, which said, "Environmental Disposal Systems, Inc. (EDS) proposes to install an EPA Class I Liquid HAZARDOUS Waste Injection Well at a location within the Romulus City limits. . . ."

- FACT The front-page headline of The Romulus News edition dated October 31, 1990, was, "Deep Well Disposal of TOXIC Waste May Come to Romulus."

- FACT On December 10, 1990, EDS representatives appeared before the Romulus City Council and Mayor Beverly McAnally and made a presentation of the proposed Deepwell project. During the presentation, the term "HAZARDOUS" was mentioned 20 times and the term "TOXIC" was mentioned three times.

- FACT Barry Seifman, Romulus City Attorney, wrote two legal opinions to David Paul, Romulus Building Director, on December 19 and 21, 1990, regarding, "Deep Well HAZARDOUS Disposal." Beverly McAnally delivered these opinions to EDS in July, 1992.

- FACT At the request of the DNR, The Detroit News/Free Press published public notices on June 11 and 18, 1991, which stated, ". . . Public notice is hereby given by Environmental Disposal Systems, Inc. of intent to establish one HAZARDOUS and non-hazardous liquid waste disposal well. . . ."

Any reasonable person, after reviewing these FACTS, can come to only one conclusion – Mayor Beverly McAnally has been untruthful. She was untruthful to you, the citizens, voters, and taxpayers of Romulus. She was untruthful to you, the people who elected her to office and to whom she is accountable.

She has now spent $400,000 of your tax dollars on lawyers in order to defend her misstatements. Four hundred thousand dollars is a lot of money – money that could be used on important projects in your community, such as:

- the purchase of 20 new police cars, or
- the addition of more sidewalks and street lights, or
- the improvement of the City's park facilities, or
- the clean-up of the Satterlee Dump, or
- the implementation of much-needed road repairs, or
- the institution of a one-mill tax break for Romulus homeowners.

Take a minute and call your city councilmen and tell them to stop wasting your money on lawyers.

- Randy Gear (942-9049)
- Mike Prybyla (941-2356)

- Bill Wadsworth (941-0616)
- Mary Ann Banks (941-0320)

Sincerely,
Douglas F. Wicklund, President

Parents invited to fun day meet

Romulus parents are invited to join their children in a two hour fun activity Saturday at Romulus High School.

The kick-off session for the program known as "Kids Enjoy Your Selves...Without Drugs" will include visits from Ronald McDonald and McGruff the Crime Dog during the 1 to 3 p.m. fun day program Saturday.

The Saturday program is geared to introducing parents to the scope of the drug, gang and violence prevention program slated for the rest of the school year.

Fireworks display bids are sought

Bid authorization for this year's July 4th fireworks display were approved Monday night by the City Council.

Each year the city's Recreation Department seeks bids for the fireworks that are shot off at dusk at Elmer Johnson Park.

The council also approved the authorization of bids for six portable radios and a charger base for the police department.

Ailing police chief reported no better

Mayor Beverly McAnally said no improvement has been reported to her in the case of ailing Police Chief Robert Brown.

Brown has been on sick leave since late 1994. McAnally said it appears that she may have to officially make Lt. Daryl Poe the acting police chief. Poe, she explained, has been filling that position in recent months.

Good Friday planning continues

Pastors interested in taking part in the 1995 Good Friday procession and outdoor service (weather permitting) are urged to meet at the Romulus Wesleyan Church at noon Friday.

The meeting will be the second in a series of planning sessions for the religious activity. Last year's procession and service attracted more than 230 worshippers.

Rev. Donald "Mike" McClellan, host pastor, will be the featured speaker.

Clergymen and laity meet about 11:45 a.m. in downtown Romulus. A parade is formed and the hymn singing participants then march from Goddard Road at the railroad tracks to Five Corners (site of the historic church).

Pastors share carrying the large wooden cross over the more than mile long procession.

Former coach to enter 'hall'

Former Romulus football coach George R. Pratt will be inducted into the Michigan High School Football Coaches Hall of Fame on March 18.

The honoring ceremony banquet will begin at 6 p.m. at Crisler Arena on the University of Michigan campus and tickets for the night's events cost $20. Checks should be made out to "Hall of Fame Banquet."

Lloyd Carr, U of M assistant coach, will be the featured speaker.

Spaghetti dinner slated Friday

A spaghetti dinner to help support the children's programs at the Romulus Wesleyan Church will be offered from 5 to 6:45 p.m. Friday at the church.

Tickets for the dinner cost $4 for children age 10 to adults, $2 for those 6 to 9 years old and those 5 and under will be served free.

The church women also will be offering special baked goods for sale.

At 7 p.m. a special family style movie, Sammy will be shown to the public free.

Reservations for the dinner can be made by calling 941-1511.

Passing buck is no answer for problem

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

The Romulus School District has taken a direct hit from a daily newspaper on the issue of its multi-million investment of computers.

In its somewhat one-sided report on the Romulus School District's battle to raise Michigan Education Assessment Program (MEAP) test scores, a rewrite person or editor reportedly wrote the investment still left "lousy test scores" showing in Romulus.

Superintendent Dr. William Bedell admits to his part of the blame via his articulating of this issue with the public.

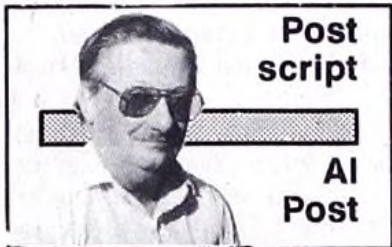

This writer warned Bedell several years ago upon arriving in Romulus that computers were not the total answer, that the total chemistry of education needed and still needs to be changed in Romulus.

Romulus biggest weakness then as today, is the lack of parental involvement in their children's education.

True some dedicated teachers today are as stressed out as the students' parents, but a greater effort needs to be made to encourage parents into the triangle of educational pursuits.

Bedell was told earlier, "You can strap earphones on these kids, but you can't make them listen."

To add to that parents need to be told, "You gave us your money, can you also give us something even more important—your time?"

Post
script

Al
Post

Dr. James Dobson of Focus on the Family radio program stresses the same by saying "parents must know what goes on in the school if they want to reinforce their children's academic responsibilities."

"They should provide support in areas where self discipline is needed," Dobson said.

But to do that locally, raises another prime concern, which neither the school board nor local city council members care to address. Why are all Romulus School Board meetings not on cable television and why are both governmental bodies meeting at the same time?

Not only are the school trustees overseeing more of your tax dollars (as city officials are quick to point out), but they are also handling your most valued family product (your children).

To add to that point, citizen activist Mary Collins walked into the school board meeting several Mondays ago and asked this writer, "Do you always cover these meetings?"

"No," Collins was told, "I'm usually at the city council meetings along with you. I have not learned yet how to clone myself so that I can be at both meetings at one time."

While the comment might be considered a little flippant it does point out the other part of the lack of direct communication issue, in that the local press (except in extreme situations) does not cover school board meetings because of the time conflict.

Thus, local teachers and administrators have had to rely on students bringing home written information (delivery is poor) or the mailing of such information to each student's home.

The bottom line is if the community is truly "embarrassed" over poor MEAP scores, all segments should work to upgrade them.

That means governmental meetings should be held on different days and the school district needs to become more aggressive in encouraging parents to get involved with the schools.

Local cable needs to be used more extensively not only for board meeting coverage, but should provide live televised phone interviews during which times parents can talk to Bedell and other top educational leaders on TV.

The issue is more than spending the buck (the district has spent many), it is rather "not passing the buck." This writer has seen too much of the latter, by administration, teachers, trustees, parents, students, parents and even city officials.

Do I hear any amens out there?

Mayor's Task Force distributes $11,000

More than $11,000 in anti-drug program funds were awarded to local community groups last week by Mayor Beverly McAnally's Drug Task Force.

Funds provided by the drug task force will be used to assist organizations in curbing drug abuse, thwarting the spread of gang activity and providing information on domestic violence, a spokesman said.

McAnally revealed that funds will also support organizations in targeting specific Romulus citizens for assistance.

The task force is composed of approximately 30 city officials, community leaders, social service agency representatives, school persons and parents interested in providing information and assistance to youngsters to combat drug use and smoking.

Among the recipients of task force funds is Growth Works Inc., a company that offers a youth assistance program to Romulus youngsters, who are first time offenders.

Growth Works will be given $5,000 to increase staff time to counsel youth and their parents.

The task force is also providing $2,000 to the Romulus Police Department's gang prevention program known as Gang Resistance Education and Training (GREAT). The funds will be used to provide promotional materials such as buttons and T-shirts.

GREAT program student participants will be honored soon at graduation ceremonies at both Romulus Middle School and St. Aloysius School, Police Officer John Leacher of the GREAT program revealed last week.

A $1,000 gift has been also donated to Romulus High School students, who will be hosting a domestic violence symposium on March 29.

The symposium was planned to help increase public awareness of domestic violence issues, particularly as they concern high school age children.

A spokesman said an additional award was approved by the task force to offset expenses for the March 4 Family Awareness Fun Day that will be held at the Romulus High School.

Task force funds will be used to purchase plastic bags that state "Say No to Drugs." The bags will be presented to all event participants.

Another $1,500 will be given to the Romulus Community Commission on Drug Abuse (CCODA), who offer parent education, student assistance and support programs in the city.

The donated funds also will be used to offset expenses for a Parent Fair at the middle school later this year.

The task force also will give $1,000 to Merriman Elementary School to aid a pilot program in assisting students with homework, coping skills and recreational activities. Some of the funds will be used for speakers and activities connected with the fair.

Most of the funds raised for the mayor's Task Force come from an annual golf outing, this year slated for June 23 at Shady Hollow Golf Course in Romulus.

Tax volunteers on job

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

A team of volunteer income tax preparers are aiding Romulus area senior citizens each Wednesday afternoon at the local senior center on Bibbins Street.

Barbara Schultz, site coordinator for the American Association of Retired Persons tax help program, said the team is on hand at the center from 1 to 4 p.m. each Wednesday until tax deadline time in April.

"Our seniors are surprised to find out that sometimes they are eligible for rebates they were not aware of," Schultz said.

"These volunteers are trained intensively for a week and then must pass tough tests before they are declared certified," said Schultz, who also is the center assistant manager.

This year we have three new volunteers from Romulus helping out, Schultz said, including Janet Ark, Bettye Martin and Ilene Kelly.

They join two veteran volunteer tax preparers Joyce Schumacher of Westland and Leonard Smarch of Garden City.

Reservations and further information can be obtained by calling 942-6852.

Romulus workers cited by United Way

MCN Staff Writer

A team of determined Romulus employees and their employers teamed up to increase their 1994 United Way Campaign donation to $31,200 (or more than 102 percent over 1993), UWC Employee Chairman Barbara Boehmer reported last week.

"The action displayed that Federal Mogul-Romulus employees are truly dedicated to our customers and our community," said Larry Finnell, general manager of the company.

"To encourage employees to participate in the campaign, Federal Mogul held two separate raffles for all contributors," a United Way spokesman said.

"For one raffle eight winning employees selected a gift certificate for either Hudson's, Sears stores or Mountain Jack Restaurant. The other raffle granted a paid day off to three very happy employees," the spokesman said.

United Way President Virgil Carr said, "The outstanding efforts of Federal Mogul-Romulus and its employees have made 1994 a very successful year." The UW raises and distributes funds to some 140 health and human service agencies in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

The agencies help people with the following problems: domestic violence, child abuse, juvenile delinquency, crime, illiteracy, homelessness, drug and alcohol abuse, infant mortality, care for the elderly and services for the handicapped.

New coach named

Former San Diego Charger coaching staff member Mark D. Woodson has been named the new varsity football coach for the MEGA League-bound Romulus High School Eagles.

Woodson, 34, currently a civics and English instructor in the Westwood Community School District, is already working with this fall's Eagles varsity players in the weight room area, Athletic Director Jesse Meriweather said Monday.

While serving with the Chargers in 1993, Woodson said he was responsible for working with the defensive backs and return specialists both in the classroom and on the field.

Meriweather had great praise for Woodson stating "I liked his whole philosophy of stating academics, discipline and setting goals were three of his top priorities."

"He's already talked to some of his players saying his key desire is to 'build a championship team in Romulus."

Romulus man is 'Good Samaritan'

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Area motorists are finding travel on Interstate-75 in the Metro Detroit area much safer today thanks to Romulus resident Kevin J. Swisher.

Swisher is a member of the Alliance Freeway Courtesy Patrol that travels along I-75 from 4 p.m. to midnight Tuesdays through Saturdays.

Since its inception in September 1994, the service has aided 700 motorists and is quickly reaching its goal of "providing peace of mind and the knowledge that help is available" along that super highway.

"Opinion cards from more than 100 grateful motorists underscore the program's success. This sets the stage for us to secure more funding, so that this concept can be expanded to other Metro Detroit area freeways," Alliance Chairman John Broad revealed.

The courtesy patrol provides a variety of cost-free services to stranded motorists, including:

- detection and reporting of accidents.
- providing fuel, oil or other fluids; changing or inflating flat tires; making minor repairs (such as cooling hoses or fan belt replacements).
- clearing disabled vehicles from traffic lanes.
- relaying traffic information to communication networks.
- calling for emergency assistance when necessary.

Meeting date change requested by resident

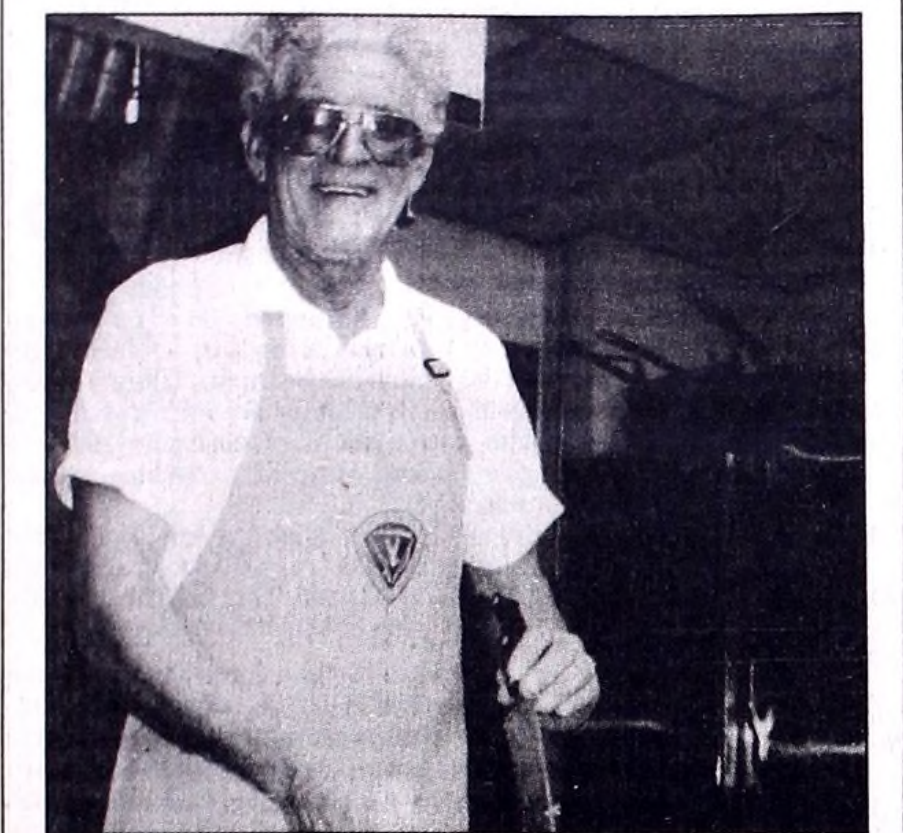

By AL POST

A request for either the Romulus School Board or the City Council to change public meeting dates was virtually ignored by both governing bodies Monday night.

Sonda Stepchuk first appeared at the Romulus School Board meeting and asked if they would consider changing their date.

Stepchuk said she was told by those at the school board meeting that they have historically met on Mondays and the council that formerly met on Tuesdays was the one that changed meeting times.

Stepchuk then joined the gathering at the Romulus City Hall and asked the council to consider changing its meeting time.

Residents sound-off on issues

During the past week, callers registered their gripes about school programs, recycling and in-law problems on the Sound-Off 729-4006 line.

To add your comments or criticisms to the Sound-Off column, call 729-4006 between 5 p.m. and 8 a.m. daily or any time during the weekend. Callers are requested to speak clearly and avoid profanity and personal attacks on individuals.

The calls are listed below:

We all have heard the many in-law jokes. Well, my friend has the worst I have ever heard of. After 35 years of marriage, they have finally broken up their son's marriage and family. They were a nice family with two daughters and two sons-in-law and six grandkids. Now they are getting a divorce due to in-law problems. These in-laws need to open up their eyes and take a good look at their son. They will see real fast that their son is no angel. This man is 53 years old and living with his mother. What a shame! I hope that family can sleep good at night.

I have never called before, but I felt compelled to mention how very much I appreciate the coverage of the many environmental issues by your newspapers. I feel that these are serious issues and that they have a serious impact on the area families and their rights to a safe and healthy environment in which to raise their children.

The first step to making changes in our society is to become educated, and through your coverage of stories that may be hard to read or upsetting to some, people are becoming educated and aware and that is a good thing. Thank you.

More talk of late of a new state license plate and a new state song. How about a new state motto? "If you seek a polluted peninsula, look around you."

The Carleton Farm megalandfill, the EDS injection waste well, and the financially foolhardy incinerator expansion are but three examples of the waste industry free-for-all running rampant in Michigan. We have enough waste in our backyards, we don't need or want any more. Please, elected officials, be wary of those promising short-term compensations for long-term contamination. Thank you.

Since when does Westland have curbside recycling? Shouldn't things be sent to the house to tell us about it?

I opened my newspaper just a few moments ago, and I could not believe what I read about this guy Richard LeBlanc, who is on the Wayne-Westland School Board. Your

Most wanted College dean 'locked up' for benefit

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
MCN Managing Editor

When the dean of the Western Center of Wayne County Community College was arrested and charged with "trying to run a college campus without a license," she hoped her co-workers, friend and students would make bail for her.

A second charge was filed accusing the dean of impersonating Marcia Clark, and her bail was set at $2,500.

Dr. Hattie L. Johnson was one of several area notables who were "arrested" in the 10th Annual Great American Lock-Up, sponsored by the American Cancer Society. Between March 7 and 10, Johnson and others who have been arrested will have an opportunity to raise bail money from their friends and co-workers with the funds going to the American Cancer Society.

"Because all of us have been touched or know others who have been touched by cancer, I am asking you to give. Send a check or make a generous pledge to the American Cancer Society. Help me with my $2,500 bail and eradicate this dreadful disease," Johnson requested.

Others local people who are under arrest are David Artley, Plymouth-Canton School Board present, charged with "facilitating boring meeting," and Romulus Councilman and Rotarian Michael Prybyla, charged with "being volunteered by a 39 to one vote."

During the lock-up, area residents can help arrest cancer by sending an acquaintance to jail to raise pledges for the American Cancer Society.

The deed can be accomplished by following the directions listed:

- For a tax-deductible arrest free of $25, anyone 18 years of age or older may schedule an arrest by calling 1-800-543-JAIL.
- Police officers, volunteering their time, will go to prisoners' work sites to make arrests.
- Prisoners will then be transported to the nearest jail site and go before a volunteer judge in a mock courtroom to be charged, convicted and sentenced to raise bail.
- Bail can be raised by phoning for pledges while in jail. Prisoners will don prison stripes and receive bread, water or other refreshments while incarcerated.

Student plans trip to Orient

This summer, Dawn McCoy will take the trip of a lifetime - visiting Hawaii, Korea and China - as part of a 170-member Lions Club-sponsored band.

Dawn, the daughter of Moose Lodge 934 administrator Jim McCoy, is a member of the percussion section of the band.

She is excited about her future trip, and promises to return with an account of her experiences for her Belleville area friends.

Students from 94 Michigan communities and 86 high schools were among the 170 selected to participate in the 1995 band tour. The group will represent the state in the Lions International Convention Parade in Seoul Korea on July 4.

On Dawn's itinerary will be performances in Beijing and Honolulu and visits to the Olympic Village and Kyongbokkung Palace in Korea and the Great Wall and Tiananmen Square in China.

Individuals who are interested in helping Dawn McCoy raise the necessary funds may contact Jim McCoy at the Belleville Lodge 934 on East Huron River Drive.

Last week, I proposed a referendum as a way to end the deep well controversy in Romulus. My feeling was, ultimately, the voters ought to have the opportunity to put this issue to rest.

This week after discussions with both Mayor Beverly McAnally and EDS general partner, Doug Wicklund, I believe there to be an opportunity to come to a negotiated settlement. I think the Mayor (and hopefully the City Council will agree) has a genuine interest in seeing this issue settled. I also believe Wicklund has that same interest. Rhetoric aside, and there has been too much mudslinging from both sides, the Mayor and Wicklund are very capable, decent individuals. The Mayor has served Romulus in elected office for many years and has fought hard to uphold the principles that she feels are right for the people of this fine city. Wicklund is a caring businessman who won't leave Romulus high and dry if the well becomes operational.

I propose a face-to-face meeting between the two combatants. I suggest that they attempt to hammer out the issues eye-to-eye with only an impartial mediator present. Maybe in this type of setting, the two can learn to respect one another, and thus come to some type of common ground. Hey, what the heck, it can't hurt, can it?

Last week's record-setting Lotto was not won by Al Haidous. That's too bad, because the owner of Al's Friendly Market and Wayne City Councilman, had vowed to donate the $43 million to improving the city of Wayne.

Haidous signed a promissory note over to this newspaper's Wayne Editor Margo Dewey, that the $43 million was the property of Wayne if he were to win.

Obviously, chances were less than great that Haidous would ever see $100, let alone $43 million. However, he is quick to point out that his store has had a lucky streak. Just a month ago, someone who purchased a ticket at Al's walked away with $100,000. Others have won $50,000 and $10,000.

And what does Haidous think the city of Wayne needs? "An improved downtown area, sidewalk lights and some departments have too great of a workload," recites Haidous. He is quick to point out that city employees are doing a great job for the most part, but are overwhelmed and understaffed. His dream money would alleviate these problems.

Oh well, it won't happen this go around. Better luck next time, Al. the city's counting on you.

Delegate objects to columnist

To the editor:
Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority (CWCSA) is an asset. Having had the privilege of being the delegate to the CWCSA for the past four years, I take great exception to Ivan Helfman's Truth or Dare article titled, "Incineration Plans May Need Recycling", in the January 26, 1995, Westland Eagle.

His opening statement about recycling bears no truth and the entire article is geared in that direction. The Westland City Council did, in fact, vote no for the Waste-to-Energy Project but not solely for Mr. Helfman's stated reason. There were some unanswered questions and misinterpreted facts voting took place for the second time, three members still voted no for whatever reasons they felt justified. Recycling was just a part of those reasons.

I'm happy that Mr. Helfman is such an authority on recycling. As his article states, there is at this time no real market for recyclable materials. But what he failed to state is that if that market is ever available, under the Waste-to-Energy Agreement, we have an absolute right to take advantage of that market and recycle.

Wayne County is rapidly becoming the landfill capital of the United States. We have more than enough landfills, but does that mean the five communities that make up the CWCSA need to become a part of that problem? I don't think so.

The real question here is do we landfill or incinerate? This is the only question. We have the right to recycle. Further, the entire cost of the project is being funded by CEI; we have no obligation of any kind to commit public funds for this project, and we have no intention of doing so.

As far as landfills being less expensive, yes, at this time it is true. But Mr. Helfman's figures are a little off. The CWCSA Board of Directors have set our tipping fees at approximately $48 per ton, of that approximately $22 per ton is the bond indebtedness rate. Regardless of where we dispose of our waste, the $22 will remain, so if you combine the $22 to the average tipping fee of $19, landfilling would still be in the $41 per ton range.

Just a small difference at this time, and after our incinerator is closed, what would those landfills charge us to dispose of our waste? We would be forced to pay whatever the rate would be increased to.

But now we have the option to continue burning our waste and going to a landfill in the future, if it becomes necessary. But we would have no recourse to go back to incineration once we close the CWCSA.

The reason the CWCSA required a dedicated cell in the request for proposal was, in fact, for the protection of our communities. Mixing of waste in a landfill in the event the state or federal government calls for mitigation of the property. We only sought to protect our citizens for that clean up cost.

To label our demand a flim flam indicates that Mr. Helfman consulted no one from the board of directors or the executive director of the Authority. If he had taken the time we would have been more than happy to explain why we did it.

But consequently, Mr. Helfman spoke with a councilwoman from Oakland County, who obviously had the same opinion he had about waste to energy projects. Does her personal opinions make her right?

As to most concerned citizens, only four or five people spoke at any one council meeting or study session about recycling. I might interject that of these four or five people, two were not from one of the five communities which make up the CWCSA.

In answer to Mr. Helfman's final statement, "If the other communities could be persuaded to abandon the incinerator as easily as they abandon schools, the buildings could be turned into a community recycling center."

The member communities of the CWCSA and/or the five city councils have absolutely no control or input into the school boards. They make no decision to close any schools.

In closing, I would like to say that after working on this Waste-to-Energy Project for the past four years plus, I take great pride in the fact that this project is going forward. I feel certain in the years ahead we will be proven to have made the right choice.

Poster draws angry response

To the editor:
I am appalled that councilman Mike Prybyla (at the Feb. 14 council meeting) made an open and outward show of support for an established business owner after her involvement along with RECAP members of a handmade "Klan-ish" style poster of my husband.

This poster was one of "ethnic intimidation" and was observed not only by myself, but was also observed by others in the community, as well as being observed by the local authorities. This poster was taken down and retrieved by a RECAP member and then a letter of apology placed in its place.

This poster was only taken down after the local authorities were called.

At this meeting Ms. Valdez gave a speech to the council regarding her past hardships (in which I do sympathize) and gave account of her so-called patriotism and her rights to voice her opinion. (Although the poster had no slogans or phrases of such opinion) and she showed "a poster" supposedly of the one that had been posted at her establishment. Whether this poster was the original or not, remains to be seen.

Ms. Valdez has yet to apologize to my husband's colleagues on the council, has yet to apologize in a local newspaper, or even to apologize to my husband and I by virtue of a letter sent to our home. And yet, Councilman Prybyla

Newspaper observes 109 years of service

This month, one of the six community newspapers, published by Michigan Community Newspapers, is observing its 109th anniversary.

We are proud of the many years of service recorded by the Belleville Enterprise in publishing local news and focusing on home town events. It is a heritage that we pledge to continue in the decades ahead.

When the Enterprise was founded on March 10, 1886, the state was only 49 years old, and the national population was between 50 and 60 million. In 1886, the Statue of Liberty was dedicated, Grover Cleveland was president and the American Federation of Labor was founded. It was also the year that Ty Cobb was born and the first amateur golf championship was played.

Times have changed, but the value of the home town newspaper is the same today as it was then.

In its early days, the Enterprise published such newsy items as a man injured by a runaway wagon. Today, we report on auto or truck injury accidents. Then, the Enterprise reported on the travels of local people to Romulus, Detroit or Willis, and today, we report on area residents who travel around the world.

But, the focus is the same.

We record the happy news of births, weddings, anniversaries, promotions and awards, and we list the sad news of injuries, deaths and tax increases.

Just as in 1886, we are interested in what our local people do, where they earn their living, how their lives are affected by laws and ordinances and what they think about local issues.

We plan to keep the information flowing for another century or more.

openly and outwardly stated "he'd support Ms. Valdez and her established business al-ways" and I assume he sup-ports RECAP and their "Klan-ish" tactics also because they too were involved.

If Councilman Prybyla thinks for one iota that he won his elected council seat with-out ethnic minority votes, then he had better think otherwise. To make such a statement only shows the citizens of Romulus who the real Mike Prybyla is and where he's really coming from. It also shows irrespon-sibility of a councilperson who is to serve all people of ethnic, creed and color and who are also paying to do such services.

This city has seen and heard enough of sparks of racism by show of this "ethnic intimidat-ing death threats" and to "in-duce violence" by Klanish style incidents brought on by RECAP members along with Ms. Valdez, let alone to see similar by virtue of support by a member on the city council.

"Sometimes it's best to re-main silent rather than to open your mouth and remove all doubt."

In which I cannot say that the above slogan applies to Councilman Gear because without a doubt by looking at his outward appearance, he is one of an ethnic minority. Every February Councilman Gear acknowledges 'Black His-tory Month' by quoting names of famous black historians who themselves have fought so hard through hardships, strug-gles and strifes; who have fought for freedom along with their Civil Rights; and some have even suffered martyrdom ... over the same incidents sparked by RECAP members and Ms. Valdez. And yet, to my disappointment, Councilman Gear has remained silent. (Al-though Councilman Gear has been known to awkwardly and blatantly make statements to others and even groups who've come before the council, es-pecially when he held the gavel.)

I do commend Councilman Gear for acknowledging the black historically famous indi-viduals, but I do not commend him on his silence regarding this "ethnic intimidating" in-cident. Maybe Councilman Gear has "no comment because of litigation".

Warnings issued

To the editor:
Poison! Warning! Beware!
A mind is a terrible thing to waste, and for the present, many children have become the innocent victims and recip-ients of toxic waste through the sex education classes be-ing utilized in Romulus schools. Quite unlike the health courses given 10 or 20 years ago, the focus of these classes seems to have changed. Without discretion, everything is covered, from masturbation, suggestions of homosexuality and glossary words, phrases and definitions that would make one think he had ac-cidentally walked into a porn shop.

This type of material is to-tally inappropriate and has no business being in a 10- or 11-year-old child's classroom, or any other classroom for that matter.

One would think that with promiscuity on the rise among teens (I wonder why?), sexu-ally-transmitted diseases run-ning amok among teens, AIDS assaulting young people, teen pregnancies and abortions abounding, that those in au-thority in Romulus schools would be extremely careful and protective about what is being taught in the classroom.

While there is nothing new under the sun, there certainly appears to be a flippant, lib-eral, and broad minded atti-tude existent among certain adults regarding this matter. Is it any wonder that young peo-ple think that "anything goes regarding sexual activity" when they see adult role models falling so short of the mark of decency?

The welfare of students should be Romulus schools' primary concern. Yet, I have to wonder why it isn't. If adults actually approved such hei-nous teachings to be foisted on children who are held captive in the classroom, then it's time some changes were made. Were grant monies awarded to Romulus schools for utilizing this experimental sex ed mat-erial? Are Romulus student merely being abused and used as monetary commodities in the classroom? While many students in Romulus are fail-ing reading, math, etc., their minds are being polluted with the prevalent poison being promoted through the present sex ed classes.

While some may consider this amusing, others find it very disappointing, shocking, and a very real threat to the well being of Romulus Stu-dents. Who will answer for the potential harm being incurred by these contaminate and de-structive teachings? The chil-dren will pay the ultimate price, won't they? But this need not be.

Parents and citizens of Ro-mulus, we all have a vested in-terest in the community of Ro-mulus and its future. Today's children are tomorrow's leaders and must be protected, guided and directed. Deci-sions must be made in the best interest of Romulus students. Apparently the time has come and gone when one could rely on the school system to make sound judgments which would benefit our children. No longer can the public school system be relied upon to act in the child's best interest.

Seeds of corruption and seeds of destruction are being planted in young people's minds, and these will grow and produce rotten fruit if they continue to be fertilized with the toxic waste being pro-moted in the present sex ed classes in Romulus schools. The approval and promotion of this sex ed curriculum could be "AIDing (AIDS) and abed-ding (abetting)" the downfall of Romulus children. Poison! Warning! Beware! God help the children!

A few questions: Why didn't the Romulus School Board at least stop the teaching of these sex ed classes until they could review them once again? Why are these courses being al-lowed to be continued even though the board has been warned about them? What did the Board have to lose by stop-ping these classes im-me-diately? It's much better to prevent harm than to attempt to undo it.

Greed, apathy attacked

To the editor:
How much or how far are we, as homosapians, going to go with our apathetic, greed-ridden ways? Are you aware that between dusk and dawn approximately 55 thousand children around the world die from malnourishment? 28 mil-lion American children liter-ally go to bed hungry.

Have you ever wondered how many crimes are com-mitted out of simple need or sur-vival? Friends and family are also scared to help each other during economically stressful simply because of greed-ridden insecurity. They, them-selves, scared of losing a dollar, feel that is an excuse not to help. The very structure of families are even in danger. parents are literally casting their children into the trash simply out of greed for their own survival.

Our last election was held out of anger and frustration. When a nation of people vote in that fashion, a lot of fore-sight, logic and wisdom is lost. How in God's name do you build genuine national secu-rity when you vote for and pass measures that actually add to poverty, hunger, homelessness, and deprivation of medical care? In a democracy does one allow the elitists to ask us to cut our arms of simply because the little finger is missing? Where is our wisdom?

Even our Federal Reserve Board isn't helping matters. When a product is already out of reach of its people, surely higher interest rates aren't the answer.

All of America's frustration from not having enough to sur-vive will be contained within our borders. This could turn our country into a violent and very cruel blood bath. It would be a mistake if our leaders at that point have not figured this out. They will decide that a war must be fought some-where to relieve tension and frustration within.

The next time your friends, neighbors, and families ask you to walk that extra mile when they're in dire straights, consider doing so. Sometimes just a little more time, aid, ef-fort and patience would help solve their problems. People do not seem to give a lot of time. People are just helping themselves. For the sake of materialism or love when, if ever, will we stop treating each other like the trash we throw away? I ask, has our con-science been completely strip-ped from our souls, or are our souls gone, too?

It's often a serious oversight on our part to realize that it matters not how great we are or ever intend to be, because our basic needs, food, clothing, shelter, etc., will always be met.

In conclusion, we seem to have thrown away all of the things we so desperately need to keep:

Need of one another, human love, respect of others, com- passion and caring, kindness instead of cruelty, hope in- stead of despair, equality in- stead of snobbery, honor instead of shame, security in- stead of insecurity, homes in- stead of houses and homelessness, food instead of hunger, understanding instead of narrowness of mind, time for each other, togetherness in- stead of separateness, sharing versus greed, caring versus ap- athy, humility versus vanity, truth versus deception, wis- dom versus ignorance, and love versus hatred.

Councilman replies to well ad

To the Editor:
This letter is in response to the ad that appeared in the February 23, 1995 issue of the Romulus Roman from Douglas Wicklund of Environmental Disposal Services (EDS).

Let's really get the facts correct!

Mr. Wicklund stated that at the informational steak dinner in July, 1993, no one, including myself, said "no, we don't want the well." He further stated that we said, "Yes go ahead, we have no choice but to allow the well." This is false!

In fact, several people got up and questioned the safety, traffic and many other issues regarding this well. Mr. Wick-lund has a very selective mem-ory. How could he forget the shouting match that he and I got into when I consistently asked questions regarding the truck traffic, the smell that emanate from his operation, fu-ture traffic and the safety regarding his hazardous well?

How could Mr. Wicklund for- get that Mary Collins asked him why didn't he erect his hazardous well in Birmingham where he lives if it is so won-derful and profitable?

Why didn't Mr. Wicklund re-mem-ber that I stood up and clearly stated that "I am not in favor of this project?" How can Mr. Wicklund consistently for- get that I voted against this well from the beginning in-cluding the original resolution dated Dec.10, 1990?

I have consistently been against this hazardous waste deep well. I have written ar-ticles that appeared in the local newspapers. In those articles I questioned what this haz-ardous waste deep well would do to our city in 20, 30 or even 50 years from now. I ques-tioned the close proximity to our residential neighborhoods and the means of transporting the hazardous waste by trucks and trains to the well site.

I stated that history has re-vealed that over the past one 100 years, many of government approvals were later found to be unsafe for our citizens. In the 1880s, tobacco farmers and our government told us it was safe to smoke. In later years, asbestos was safe to use in buildings. DDT was safe to spray on our children to control mosquitoes. Agent Orange was safe to spray on our troops in Vietnam. The leaking haz-ardous well constructed in Vickery, Ohio was safe accord-ing to the government. This list was endless.

We all know history has proven that these very govern-ment approvals over the past 100 years are how the direct causes of cancer and other life-threatening illnesses. I wanted to know if this cycle would be continued in the city of Romulus.

Now let's stop a minute and look in the other direction. Have you wondered where Douglas Wicklund has re-ceived the huge amounts of money he is spending on his full page propaganda ads, his mass mail outs, his tapes of the edited versions of the council meetings, the full blown public relations company he has hired and the large number of attorneys he has retained? Is this the kind of "good neigh-bor" you would like in our community?

Mr. Wicklund never states in his ad that there is a bill pend-ing in the Michigan Legisla-ture that will prohibit his type of well of ever functioning in this state! Mr. Wicklund never tells you of the hundreds of resolution from cities, towns-hips and villages that support our fight and are against this type of potential poisoning of our planet.

Mr. Wicklund states that his hazardous well will be regu-lated by the EPA and DNR. Mr. Wicklund have you read the Detroit Free Press and Detroit News the past two weeks? Did you see the article regarding the poisoning of Lake St. Clair which was because the DNR failed to review and issue per-mits to municipalities that were dumping sewage into the rivers feeding this lake. These same permits which were sup-posed to be renewed by the DNR every five years had ex-pired in some instances more than 30 years ago. Why? The DNR stated that they were un-dertuned and didn't have the manpower to properly police these municipalities. These are the same folks who will monitor and police your haz-ardous well! Not very comfort-ing Mr. Wicklund!

Finally, I have never heard our Mayor say, "Yes, go ahead, welcome to Romulus," and neither have you Mr. Wick-lund! I have consistently re-peated again and again, this councilman was never in favor of this hazardous deep well!

Wayne remains a thorn in Belleville's side

Mega Red cage champ falls, 64-46

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

It's becoming an ugly - and painful - tradition that Belleville coach Michael Garland would like to somehow put a stop to - the Tigers seem to fall into a trap that Wayne sets for the perennial hoops champ. And Wayne did it again to the defending champs. Tuesday night, Wayne burned Belleville 64-46, snapping a 22-game Mega Conference Red Division winning streak and handing the champs their first-ever loss in the two-year-old conference.

And it wouldn't surprise anyone to know that Belleville has to be concerned about their latest performance. Their concerns apparently were carried over to Friday night's meeting with a hapless Taylor Kennedy.

Yes, Belleville won, 63-49. No, they did not play like a defending or reigning champ.

Kennedy was in this game - and they shouldn't have been - right to the end. Belleville led by four (12-8) after the first period and, would you believe was outscored 15-14 in the second period before Garland shook up his lineup and the revised bunch came back and outscored their rivals 16-8 and 23-14 in the final two periods to preserve the victory and the title.

Is that the way to play just before the district playoffs, coach?

"No, we didn't play well," responded Garland. "And I don't know what it is. It could have been a holdover from our loss to Wayne, but that isn't any excuse."

Is he concerned with the playoffs a couple of days away with the way his team is performing?

"Yes, I am. But we will learn from this experience."

Belleville will have to because they are hosting a district tournament, and there could possibly be a rematch with Wayne. The other notables coming to town for the playoffs are Westland John Glenn and Romulus. From these four, bets are, will come the next district champ.

In the meantime, Belleville must get past Fordson (Tuesday night) if it wants all of the 1995 "Red" crown. A Fordson upset would force Belleville to hand over a share of the crown to Wayne and coach Chuck Henry.

Against Kennedy, the Tigers got 13 points from Eric Summers and 10 from Robert Griffin.

Wayne sophomore Lorenzo Guess continued to look impressive as he boosted his stock as one of the finest players in the area with back-to-back sterling performances against Belleville and Monroe.

Guess scored 12 of his 21 points in the third period to lead the Zebras to a 68-65 victory over Monroe, avenging a first-round loss to the Trojans.

Monroe led after one 14-12 and stayed out in front 31-30 at the half.

Then, Guess put on a display of marksmanship that stunned Monroe in the third period and lifted Wayne into a 51-46 lead. Monroe's Don Marcero and Spencer Roecker kept their team in the game.

In the final minute, Wayne salted the victory away thanks to their performance at the free throw line where Roland Patterson, Rodney Hurst and Jameel Wooden each sank two free throws.

Wooden and Patterson scored 14 and 10 points for the evening, but individual scoring honors went to Marcero who accounted for 25 of his team's points. Roecker had 17 and Steven Jett added 11 for Monroe, who finished with an 8-3 conference and 13-5 overall record.

Against Belleville, Wayne trailed only after Tigers' Eric

Rucker, a real Rocket booster

By IVAN HELFMAN
MCN Staff Writer

John Glenn's Guy Rucker is an opposing basketball coach's worst nightmare. Unstoppable from the inside, the powerful 6-foot, 11-inch center can also nail clutch three pointers like an all-league shooting guard.

"On four occasions he's hit three point shots at the buzzer," said coach Mike Schuette. "He's a good perimeter shooter."

And a spectacular dunker. Give him an opening from the low post, and he's likely to blast by the defense and jam the ball with two-hands. "I want to make sure the ball goes in," he said.

However, on a fast break, he'll get fancy and stuff it one-handed or off a reverse.

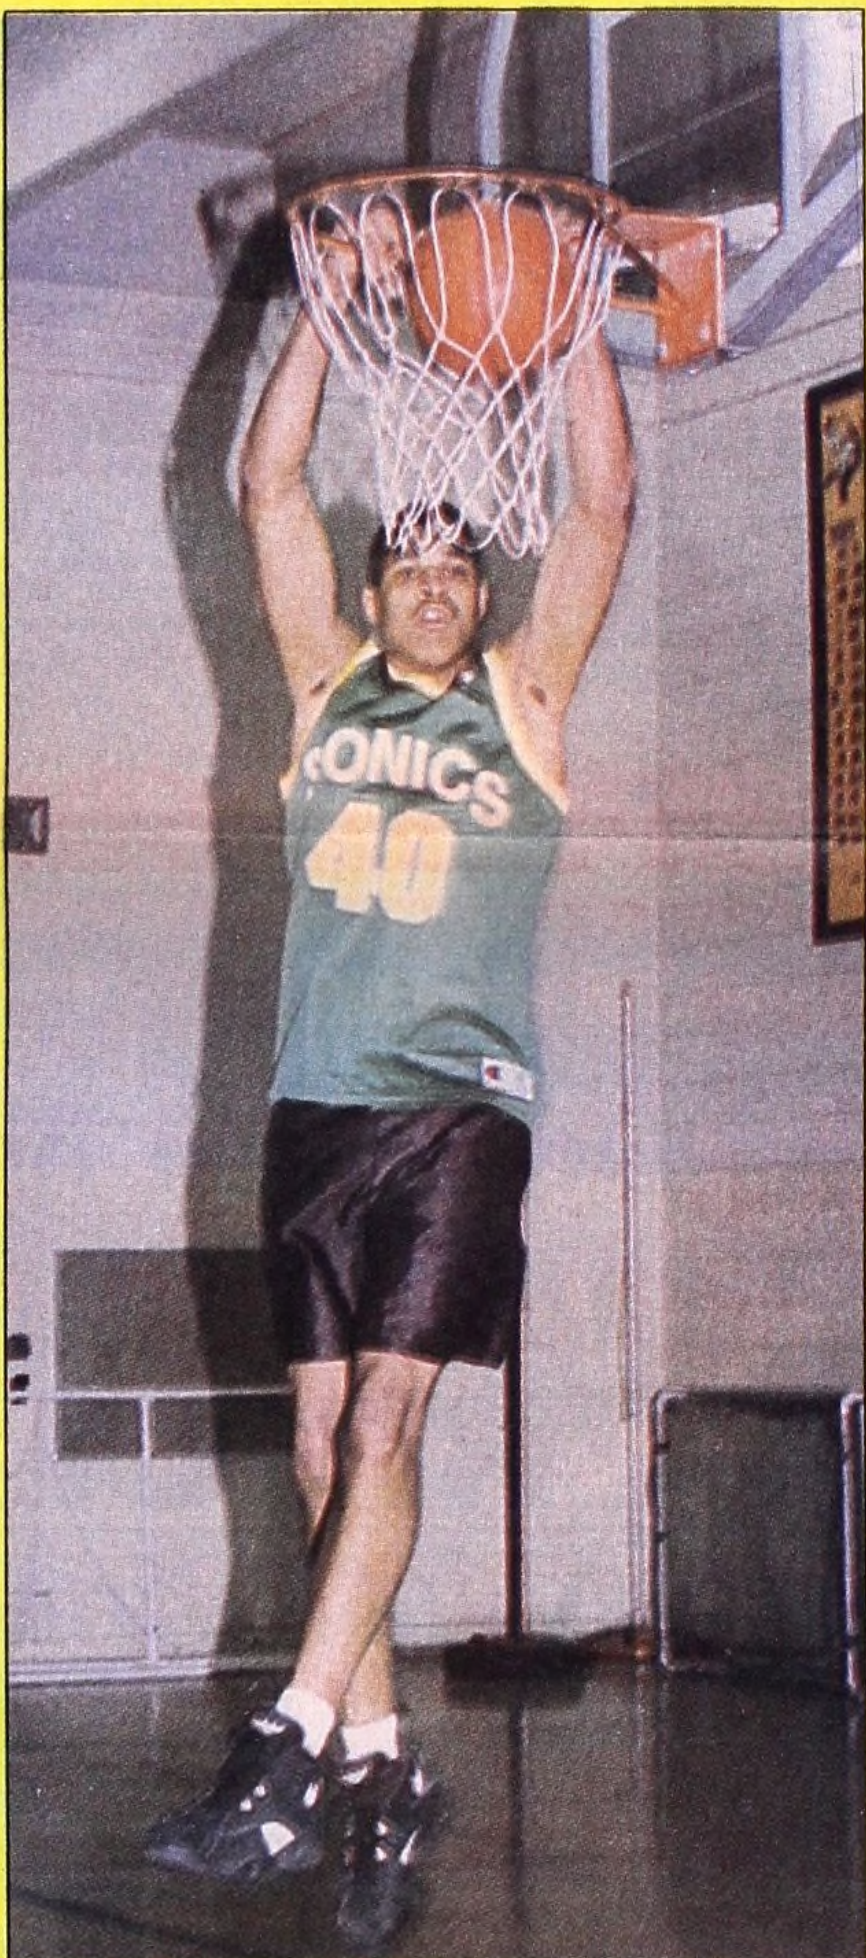

Averaging 21 points, he's the league-leading Glenn's top scorer. Were he not an unselfish player who likes to setup his teammates, there's no telling how many buckets he could drop.

A lot of those points come off the boards, since Rucker has the strength to box out opponents and haul in 14 rebounds a game, tipping in all he can.

If his offense weren't enough, his interior defense is awesome. With his height extended by long agile arms, he comes out of nowhere to block shots.

"He's blocked several at crucial times," Schuette said. "His presence under the basket makes our opponents stray from their game plan. Yet, active as he is in the paint, he has never

'Crunch time' in Western Lakes

Seasoned Plymouth-Salem coach Bob Brodie referred to it as "save-face" time.

And undefeated (in the league) John Glenn coach Mike Schuette says it's "crunch time."

But, whatever the adjectives (or are they nouns?), this is the week that the Lakes Conference basketball championship is on the line.

The four top-seeded teams - Glenn, Salem, Canton and Walled Lake Central coasted in their first-round tests, and Tuesday night, Glenn was scheduled to play Salem in Plymouth and Canton squared off with Central.

Glenn and Salem clashed earlier this year and the collision produced a Glenn overtime victory. Brodie said his Rocks were eager for the rematch.

"Our kids are looking forward to the opportunity of playing them (Glenn) again. They beat us in a close game the first time, and this (rematch) for the kids is a chance to save face."

The Rockets were placing a 11-game winning streak on the block at Salem in a game that should have been - but wasn't - played at Glenn. Because the school district is on winter break and the facilities are closed, the game was rescheduled for Salem's home court.

2 at-the-buzzer baskets give Romulus 'best win'

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

It was a storybook finish for Romulus and hoops coach Guy DelGiudice to a drama played out before a packed field house at Willow Run.

Trailing by as much as 17-points in the first half, Romulus rallied to tie the score at 62 in regulation thanks to Nick Locklear's three-pointer and an at-the-buzzer six-foot jumper by Cliff Stewart.

Then, in the OT, Brandon DeYampert capped a frantic five-minute exchange of baskets with another last-second basket pulled off after Michael Bell fired a baseline pass to the freshman whose jump shot found the net and sealed the 73-71 victory for Romulus.

"It was our biggest win of the season," said DelGiudice, whose club will need the momentum for the district playoffs. "The team refused to quit when there were times they could have easily done so."

- Guy DelGiudice

The Eagles may have come of age with the victory. They will need the maturity and intensity to survive a Class A district tournament which will be staged next week at Belleville High School.

Joining Romulus at the district will be three of the toughest teams in the area this year. The three are Belleville, the reigning Mega Confer-

Inkster places league, district title hopes on juggled lineup

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

Inkster, the defending Suburban Athletic Conference basketball champs, beat Ecorse the first time around with an at-the-buzzer shot.

And it took a superlative performance by senior Albert White and the Vikings to put down the downriver power.

However, when the two SAC archrivals clash tonight (Thursday), Inkster coach Monte Dennard will not have six of his regulars in the lineup. They are the victims of a new school board rule which requires all athletes to pass all subjects.

Which translated means - no failing grades in any of their subjects.

Because of the new and stricter academic requirements imposed on all athletes in the school district, Dennard has lost key players to academic ineligibility.

Some parents have protested to the school board, but the board refuses to bend on the subject.

"It's a tough call," said Dennard, whose Vikings are in the hunt for the SAC title. "But it is a rule that we can live by."

Dennard said Ecorse is a "testy team" that "can beat anyone at any time. We beat them only by two the first time with all of our players; this second time isn't going to be any easier."

University of Michigan-bound Albert White remains the key to the Vikings' SAC title plans. A prolific scorer who controls the tempo of the game, White has kept the Vikings in the thick of the title race. He also is the Vikings' hopes for a Wayne Memorial swimmers turned in their best times of the year and finished fifth at the annual Mega Conference Red Division Swimming & Diving Championships.

"We finished ahead of Wyandotte which beat us by some 75 points in our dual meet," said Wayne Memorial coach Randy Ferguson. "And most of our swimmers dropped more of their times than any other team."

"I felt we swam a good league meet."

Wayne finished with 124 points, a notch ahead of Wyandotte (121) and two spots above Dearborn Edsel Ford (77) in the final conference standings. Dearborn, however, with a total of 336 points, dominated the team championship.

The Pioneers beat out Monroe, which finished second (261), for top honors. Trenton was third (244), followed by Woodhaven (147).

Ferguson's younger brother, Matt, was named to the elite all-conference team. The 17-year-old Wayne senior finished fourth in the tough 500-yard freestyle event (4:58.9). Matt also made the finals in the 200-yard freestyle in an event he finished fifth (1:51.6).

Wayne also made the finals in the 200-medley relay event thanks to the efforts of Clint Nemeth, Greg Barber, Jason Garlough and Charlie Bailey, who were clocked in 1:54.3.

Garlough was awarded a fifth-place ribbon in the 200-yard individual medley (2:15.2), while Nemeth touched in at 24.8 for a ninth-place finish in the 50-yard freestyle.

as he compiled 290.3 for a fourth-place, and Garlough was eighth in the 100-yard butterfly (1:01.7).

Wayne's 200-yard freestyle relay team of Barber, Ferguson, Bailey and Jeremy Johnson had the fifth-best time (1:41.3) and Nemeth also finished ninth in the 100-yard backstroke (1:03.7).

Other Wayne swimmers who contributed points included Chris Hall, who finished 11th in the 100-yard backstroke (1:07.5) and Barber, a fourth-place finisher in the 100-yard breaststroke (1:08.6).

The Wayne 400-yard freestyle relay team made up of Garlough, Ferguson, Nemeth and Bailey turned in a 3:39.5 for a fourth-place.

Although Belleville swimmers appear to be dressed for a night on the town - something they rightfully earned this season - would you believe the undefeated Tigers put on their white shirts and ties instead, to soak in the refreshing waters of their pool. Coach George Devore and the Tigers culminated a perfect 11-0 dual meet season by winning their first Mega Conference White Division swimming & diving title.

Tigers crowned swim champs

Belleville swimmers parlayed two individual first places and a pair of victories in the relays events into their first-ever Mega Conference White Division swim championship.

With Todd Carrico picking up a pair of gold medals and also contributing to a victory in the 200-medley relay event, the Tigers managed to culminate a perfect dual meet season with a 90-point triumph at the conference championships.

The conference championships were staged last week at Taylor Truman.

The season and his team's outstanding performances at the conference meet elated third-year Belleville coach George Devore.

"Almost everyone of our swimmers turned in season's best times," said Devore, whose Tigers posted a 10-0 dual meet record for the 1994-95 campaign. "One of our goals this season was to win the conference title, and we accomplished that convincingly."

Belleville garnered 335 points to outdistance its closest rival, Carlson, which finished second with 245 points. Truman, the hosts, finished with (217), followed by Allen Park (192.5), Redford Union (122.5), Thurston (120) and Southgate Anderson (69).

Carrico, an outstanding swim talent, covered the 200-yard individual medley with the winning time of 2:09.07. He then turned in the winning time for the 100-yard breaststroke for his second gold. He won the event in 1:06.36.

Earlier, Carrico combined with Gary Collins,

Austin Rich and Aaron Lang to win the 200-yard medley relay (1:50.63).

Belleville's fourth gold medal came in the final event, the 400-yard freestyle relay. The Tigers won it with a 3:39.84.

The Tiger lineup also produced a pair of silver medalists in Ted Church and Lang.

Church finished second in the 200-yard freestyle (1:57.13) and also was runner-up in the 500-yard freestyle (5:19.73). Lang touched in second in the 50-yard freestyle (23.47) and also touched in second in the 100-yard freestyle (52.37).

Jonathan Shaw contributed a third place in the 200-yard freestyle (1:58.18) and also was a bronze-medal winner in the 500-freestyle when he carded a 5:26.56 for his efforts.

Belleville is Rich in talent

By IVAN HELFMAN
MCN Staff Writer

Austin Rich, who swims for Belleville High School, is the Tigers' most improved athlete. In two years, he has progressed from an eighth grader who couldn't swim a lap to a sophomore who brings the Mega League's third best 100 butterfly time, 1:03.72, to today league championship meet.

"Now I love swimming," he said. "I love the competition and the workout."

Coach George Devore called Rich's improvement "unbelievable."

"He's dropped 16 seconds off his time in one year," said Devore. "Austin, who never swam before, came out last year and became one of our leaders. I'm amazed. So are his teammates, who respect him for working hard and never complaining."

According to Devore, Rich's opponents are usually fooled by his deceptive appearance. Thinner than most butterfly swimmers, his strong strokes come as a surprise.

Rich also swims on the Tigers' league leading 200 intermedley relay with Gary Collins, backstroke; Todd Carrico, breaststroke; and Aaron Lang, freestyle. "We have a great chance to win the league," said Rich. But the Tigers, whose fastest time is 1:52, expect competition from Gibraltar Carlson, who posted a season best of 1:52.5.

"The team has a good chance of winning the league because we have lots of other swimmers who have dropped their times, including Todd Carrico, who is number one in the breast stroke."

Rich said that he expects Gibraltar Carlson and Taylor Truman to be the Tigers' main competition.

Talk of league swimming championships is new to Rich, whose sport had been soccer at Clague Middle School in Ann Arbor, before his family moved to the Belleville area. He said, "I began swimming in the ninth grade after friends on the team convinced me to try out. Previously, I was so afraid of swimming that I had trouble swimming a full lap."

Devore credits assistant coach Sam Vicchy for helping Rich to improve his strokes and breathing patterns and credits Rich for hard work and wholehearted dedication.

Rucker

fouled out."

Last year, Rucker led the team to a 20-5 finish by averaging 16 points, 14 rebounds, and seven blocked shots. This year Glenn is 12-2 and has a good chance to win the districts.

"Guy has great value to the team as a senior leader because he wants everybody to play as hard as he does, and we generally do," said Schuette. But without him, they're not the same team. When a collision knocked him out of a game against Wayne Memorial in the fourth quarter, Glenn squandered a lead and ended up losing by eight points.

"It was discouraging. There was nothing I could do to help," he said.

Rucker said that his best games this season were the second half comeback against Walled Lake Central, which the team won with a tough zone defense that took away Central's inside game. And a rare victory at Plymouth Salem that was highlighted by a couple of Rucker's in-your-face dunks.

"We wanted to pay them back because nobody on our varsity had ever won there," he said.

Despite Rucker's skills, he's always trying to improve, working on his defense and outside shot. "He's a hard worker in practice with a real good work ethic," said Schuette.

The work is for a purpose beyond winning the league and district and advancing in the state tournament. Next year Rucker, an excellent student, will play for Iowa, which he chose over University of Michigan or Michigan State because Iowa coaches Tom Davis and Richard Walker (from Westland) convinced him that he would get a lot of playing time.

"I think that I can step in and be a big part of the team instead of going to UM and sitting on the bench," said the Westland-John Glenn player. Eventually, Rucker wants to turn professional.

"He can develop if he works hard," said Schuette. "It will be fun to read about him in the papers."

Vikings

successful post-season.

Dennard also has Hanees Sabree, a junior guard who has stepped up his game a couple of notches to fill the void created by the loss of three ineligible players. Sabree and Leon Bouldin, a senior guard (6-0) have to shoulder most of the responsibility of getting the ball to White. The Vikings then run into trouble as they fill the slots with a cadre of relatively unknowns who may have the potential but not the varsity experience. In that group are Darrick Davidson (5-11), Chris Lindsay (6-3), Phillip Baldwin (5-9 sophomore), Ray Anarabo (6-3, forward) and Robert Jones (6-2, forward).

Although they are now a Class C team, instead of "B", it still will not be any easier for Dennard and the Vikings. They are heading for Dundee next week for a district that will include, yes, Ecorse, Allen Park Cabrini, Riverview Gabriel Richard, Flat Rock, Dundee, Erie-Mason and Southgate Aquinas.

Eagles

ence Red Division champs; Wayne Memorial, who finished second in that conference; and Westland John Glenn, which has won the Western Lakes, Lakes Division title and placed a 11-0 conference record on the block Tuesday night at Plymouth-Salem, site of the semifinalist round of the league championship.

Back to Willow Run.

With 16 seconds, Romulus trailed by five points and was well on its way to seeing a six game winning streak slashed. Then, the impossible happened. Locklear connected on the three-pointer, pulling the Eagles within two. But the ball went over to the Flyers.

The Flyers attempted a deep pass, which proved fatal.

Romulus' Antoine Stoudmire's intercepted and as he dribbled toward Willow Run's basket, saw Stewart open, and fired the ball to his teammate who went up for a six-foot jumper that was all net and gave the Eagles the two-points to tie the game (62-61).

In the five-minute overtime, neither team would buckle.

Each scored nine points in the OT and, with six seconds left Romulus got possession of the ball via a Willow Run turnover.

"The play called for Bell (Mike) to take the final shot," explained DelGiudice, "but it didn't work out that way."

When play resumed, Brandon DeYampert managed to get the ball to Bell, who dribbled to the base line was challenged by two Willow Run defenders. He flipped the ball back to DeYampert who let loose the ball at the buzzer. The ball slipped into the net with the winning basket, and pandemonium broke loose.

"It was one of the most, if not the most exciting game that I have been involved in," said DelGiudice.

Up to that point it appeared that Romulus' win streak was at risk of ending. The Flyers thanks to John McGreear and Jesse Davis, led their team to a 19-13 first-period advantage. Willow Run increased its edge, 38-27 at the half, but the Eagles came back with a 15-8 third period and a 20-16 scoring edge in the final two periods.

DeYampert, who collected six points, including the decisive basket in the OT, finished the evening with 10 points. He made five of six shots in the stretch and also contributed three assists.

Bell led all Romulus scorers with 17 points and Stoudmire added 11 points and six rebounds. Stewart rounded out the double-figure Eagles scorers with 10.

McGreear scored a game-high 23 points and Davis counted 15, which included three treys. Jerry Thornton also sank 13 points for the Flyers.

The victory boosted Romulus' overall record to 14-4 on the year.

The Eagles were back on the hardwood Tuesday night, taking on Ann Arbor Pioneer. They will wrap up the regular season tonight (Thursday) against Ann Arbor Huron.

Summers made the first basket. But Wayne's Richard Rashad got it right back and when Wooden sank a layup and put the Zebras up 4-2, the hosts managed to keep a slim lead the rest of the evening despite some heroics by Sam Reid and Erik Szyndler.

Guess, Rashad and Patterson, off of a beautiful pass from Mike Colwell, sparked a seven-point Wayne run that closed the initial quarter (14-9 Wayne).

Crucial in the win was Wayne's phenomenal free throw shooting in the second half. After hitting an anemic 3-of 11 at the foul line the first two periods, the Zebras connected on 18 of 20 in the final half and they were an unbelievable 14 of 16 in the last eight minutes of the game.

Guess had 19 points against the Tigers and Wooden contributed 16 while Richard Johnson finished with 14 for the Zebras who are 9-2 in the conference and 15-4 overall.

Time

Glenn jumped out to a 20-10 first period lead and never looked back. The Rockets led 35-23 at the intermission and enjoyed a 60-39 advantage for three quarters giving Schuette ample opportunity to use his bench indiscriminately.

Glenn also received 16 points from Savon Hubbard and Terrell Tigner came off the bench and scored 11 points. Albert Jones accounted for 12 points and nine assists for the Rockets.

Salem and Glenn will go their separate ways in search of Class A district championships. Salem, joined by natural rival, Plymouth-Canton, along with Livonia Franklin, Churchill, and Northville will travel to Novi to compete for post-season honors.

In the meantime, Glenn will make its debut at Belleville where the host, recently crowned the Mega Conference Red Division champ, will entertain the likes of Wayne Memorial, Romulus and Garden City.

Michigan Community Newspapers (Belleville Enterprise, Canton Eagle, Inkster Ledger-Star, Romulus Roman, Wayne Eagle and Westland Eagle) in conjunction with area car dealers announces the $10,000 CAR GIVEAWAY contest.
That's Right! Readers of Michigan Community Newspapers will have the opportunity to win $10,000* (must be utilized towards the purchase or lease of a new or used vehicle from participating auto dealers) in this unique contest that begins January 5 and runs through March 15.
Here's How it Works: Simply cut out the entry blanks below and deposit them in ballot boxes at the respective dealerships. Readers can enter once a week at each of the dealerships, for the ten weeks of the contest. Those that enter more than once a week will be disqualified.
Each week a finalist will be chosen from the entries that are deposited. The grand prize winner will be chosen from the 10 finalists in late March.
So don't be shy. Let's start the new year out right. Start snipping the entry blanks each and every week. You have just as good an opportunity as the next reader to bring home a new car.
This contest requires no purchase. All you need to do is fill out the entry blanks provided and visit your friendly car dealers. The weather may be cold and snowy but the deals are hot and the cars are fun.
*MCN will make your first $10,000 in payments on a vehicle of your choice (purchase or lease) from any of the participating dealers.

The Battle With DOMESTIC Violence

MICHIGAN COMMUNITY NEWSPAPERS

Spouses not the only victims of domestic violence

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

Domestic violence is definitely an American tragedy which touches each and every city, township and village in the nation.

Disguised usually in a preliminary police report as a "domestic", thereby diminishing, the altercation aspect of the assault, shunned by police because of the unwillingness of some of the traumatized to file a formal complaint, nonetheless society has suddenly opened its eyes to debate and seek solutions to a problem that has been too long brushed aside as private, a tiff between husband and wife or domestic partners.

Ironically, it took a well-publicized murder case in Los Angeles to bring domestic violence to public awareness.

These "crimes of passion" as they have been called in the past leave their scars for lifetimes.

Ask Deputy Police Chief Kerry Webb of the Wayne Police Department.

In May of 1974, Webb and his partner and former schoolmate, Patrolman Leonard J. Anderson, responded to a "domestic quarrel" complaint. Patrolman Anderson reached the door to the house and knocked. That knock was answered by a blast from a shotgun that struck the 24-year-old Anderson and took his life.

The memory of the day, the loss of a friend and fellow officer have not diminished with “These calls are among the most dreaded by a police officer. The danger and the risk to the officers can never be overstated.”

- Deputy Police Chief Kerry Webb the years.

"These calls are among the most dreaded by a police officer," said Webb. "The danger and the risk to the officers can never be overstated."

Webb stressed that the physical injuries to the spouses are only part of the tragedy - the assault also takes its toll emotionally and psychologically on the victims and the children, if there are chil-

Wayne police and 29th District Court Judge Carolyn Archbold had in place laws that enabled Wayne police to arrest and jail suspects who are accused of domestic violence.

Webb also pointed out that in abusive relationships, gender means little. Women do abuse men - but, admittedly, it usually is the woman who is at risk of becoming the victim because of past and deep-rooted societal beliefs that view women as property.

According to figures supplied by the local police departments, only one out of nine people reporting abuse are men. But, according to figures compiled by the American Medical Association, one out of every three women will find themselves in a domestic violence situation during her lifetime.

The O.J. Simpson murder case has given some women the courage to open their eyes and climb out of the bed of the enemy.

As one battered wife, who asked that her name not be used, put it: "My friends and his relatives would ask me, 'if I didn't like it, why did I stick around him'. Instead, why the hell didn't they ask him to stop beating the s--- out of me. Why the hell do men believe that a marriage license is a license to abuse?"

Some even think it's a license to kill.

"Thank God that my kids and I got out before he killed us. And he would, believe me, if he could find us," she said.

Women share abuse stories

By KIMBERLY WOLOSKE
MCN Staff Writer

Spousal abuse can be likened to the emotional death of an individual.

A battered woman feels the loss of her self-identity, the characteristics that made her an individual, her personality, and most of all, her personal safety.

For two local women, the story of their marriages is a nightmare, not a fairy tale. The bonds of matrimony became prison walls, their expectations of love dissolved into angry rages and violent confrontations.

For Jennifer, (the name has been changed to protect her identity) the warning signs of an abusive spouse came 27 years too late.

"It wasn't until I made it to recovery that I realized there were things I overlooked in college, even before we were married, that he was an abuser," said Jennifer.

Those signs included her spouse being over protective and jealous. She recalled the feeling she had when her husband embarrassed and humiliated a co-worker.

"I thought he really loves me, he was defending me and it didn't matter what he said to that woman, it was said in my honor," she said.

Jennifer and her spouse met in college, married and had one daughter. It was right after the birth of their only child that she started sensing her husband wasn't what she thought he was.

"He couldn't tolerate when the baby would cry, and he was very lazy so he never did anything to help me," said Jennifer.

Another common characteristic abusers share is their tendency to ill-treat animals. Jennifer recalled numerous occasions when her husband would terrorize their dog.

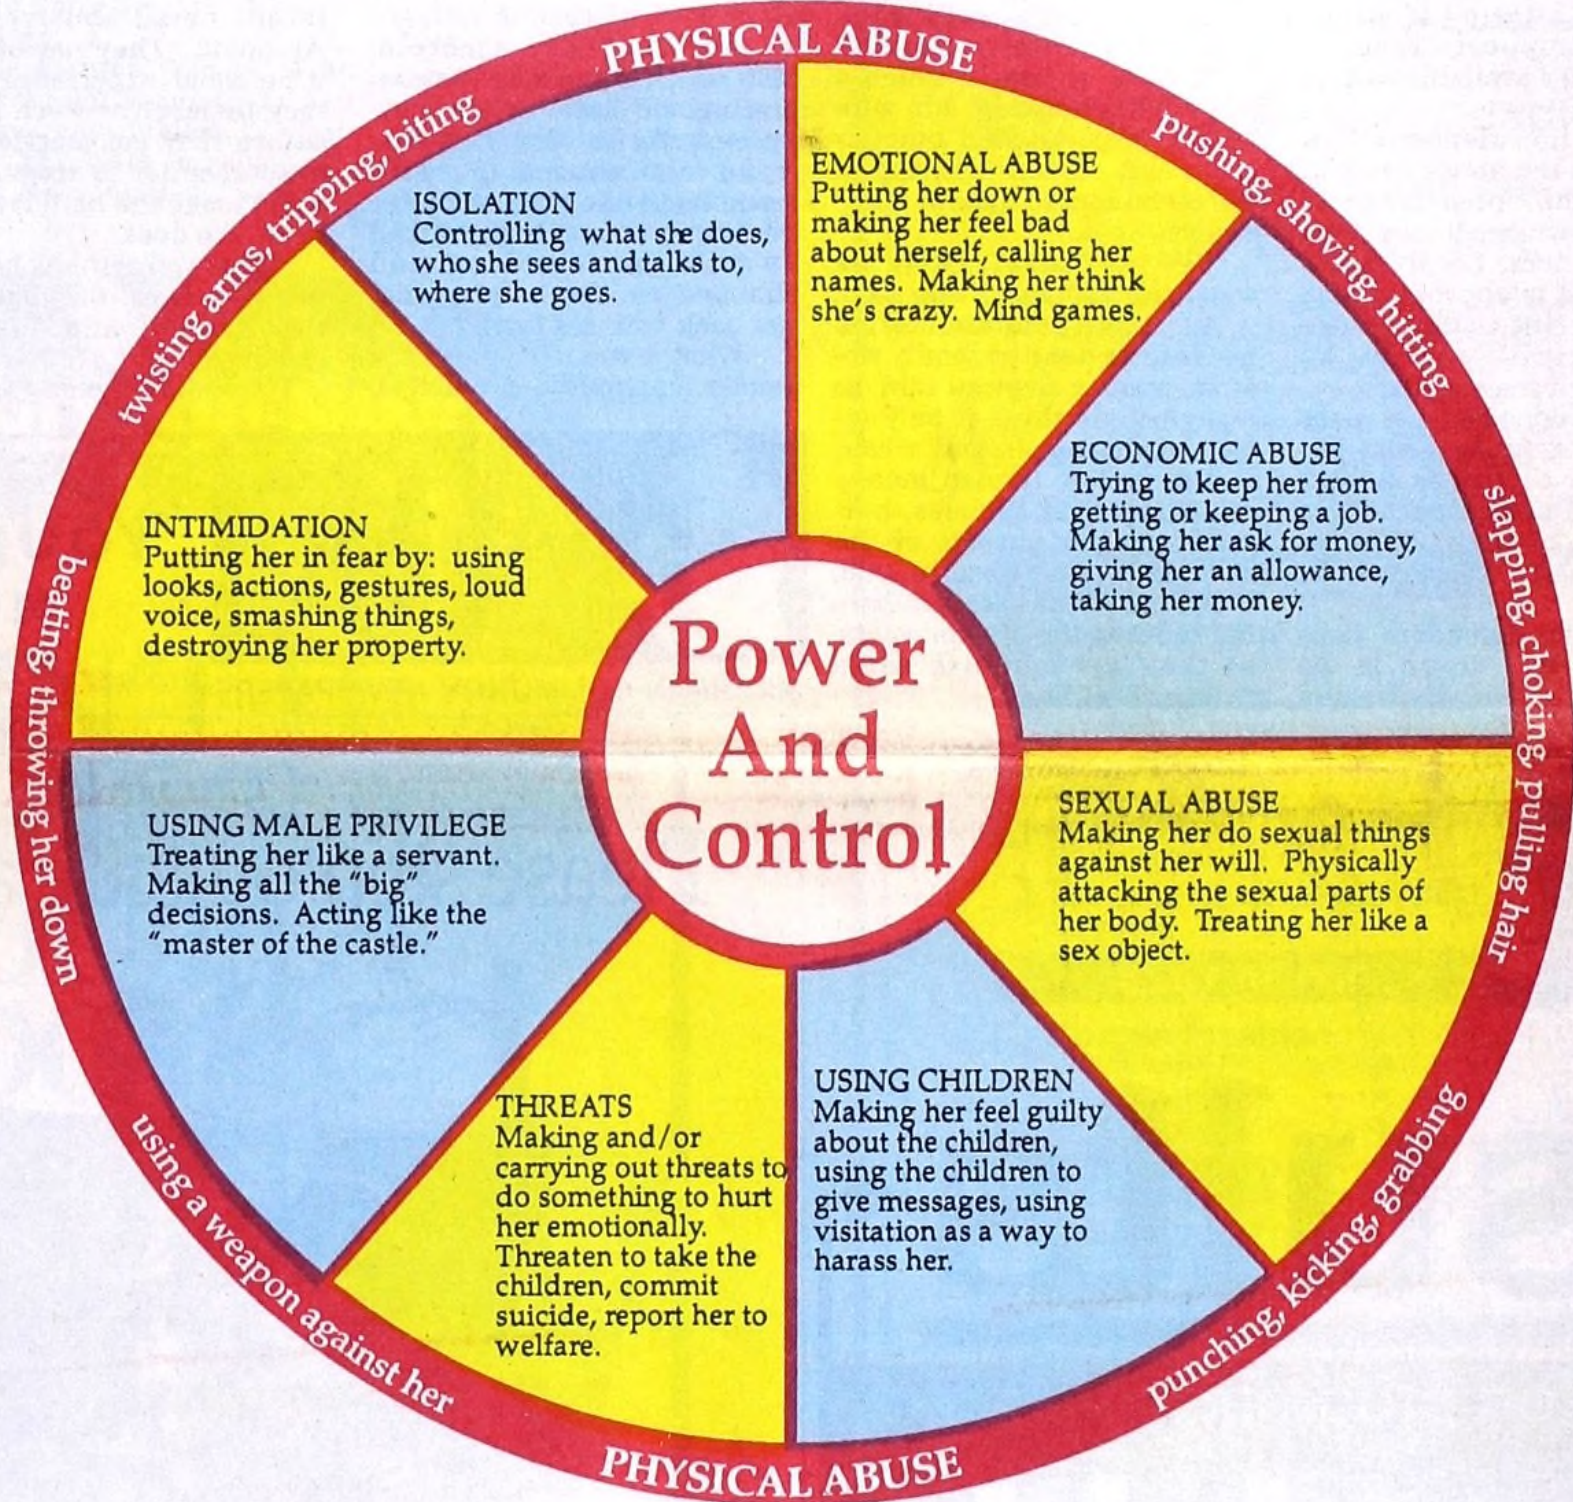

"He once held a knife to its neck and threatened to slit its throat."

Her husband, an intelligent businessman, exerted little or no effort at home yet placed strong and demanding expectations on Jennifer.

She said he would check her mileage and tape record her phone conversations, and she began to lie to keep herself safe, trying to avoid any situations that would set him off.

"I planned an escape, keeping a bag packed at a friend's home, and never letting my purse or the phone out of my sight in case I had to leave in a hurry," she said.

The stigma as well as the physical scars associated with abuse can last a lifetime. Jen-

Judge supports abuse counseling

By MARGO DEWEY
MCN News Editor

If the victims of spouse abuse could receive enough education about the behavior pattern, be directed to the proper counseling facilities for assistance and know that they are not alone in their situation, then they have a chance of surviving.

Spouse abuse is a fact of life even in the small-town community of Wayne where at least four-to-five new battered cases each week come before 29th District Court Judge Carolyn Archbold.

"I don't think necessarily the number of spouse abuse cases are increasing, it's just that the victims are now reporting them more. What's happening is the victims are being educated more about being abused through the police, court, judges and the media."

In April the Personal Protection Order will be enacted from Circuit Court, according to Archbold.

"This will restrain a spouse, former spouse, person who had a child with the victim, someone dating relationship or someone living with the individual," said Archbold. "The victims are now fighting for themselves, and it has a lot to do with all the exposure on spouse abuse. You have movies on the subject, numerous books, court cases like the O.J. Simpson, and the media constantly bringing out more information on spouse abuse."

Women and men are victims of spouse abuse, however, Archbold said the national average for women being victims is 95 percent. In her courtroom she has seen all aspects of spouse abuse from women young and old.

"One of the worst cases of spouse abuse I had was where a woman had to move out of state to get away from her abuser," said Archbold. "I also lationship, and make them aware that they cannot change the abuser - the abuser must change himself."

Dallwig said that many abusers are very contrite after the incident, apologizing for hurting them and promising not to repeat their actions. After the violent incident, they may bring the victim a gift or flowers and plead for forgiveness.

"It is important that we enable the woman to see that her actions were not the cause of the abuse. It is not her fault," the psychotherapist said. "Often, the woman believes that it is something that she said or did which provoked the violence. 'If only I wouldn't have done this or that, she tells us, the abuser wouldn't have been provoked.'"

In most instances, Dallwig reported, the abuser does not see himself as part of the problem. Instead, the abuser rationalizes that what he did was acceptable or he blames it on his wife or girlfriend.

"Men sometimes want to join in the therapy with the victim, but they need to seek counseling separately for their problem," Dallwig said. "The motive of men who want to join their wives in therapy often is that they want to turn the sessions into marriage counseling. He wants to be in control, and that is the way he believes he can gain control," Dallwig said. "First, the perpetrator needs to work on his own problem in counseling. After his problem is resolved, then it is appropriate for marriage counseling."

Single women who endure abuse, do so in the name of love, Dallwig said.

"They tell me that they love the abuser, and that he is 'good,' except for the 'few bad episodes.' The women have hopes that their boyfriends will change or they erroneously believe that they can change their own behavior and make the situation better," Dallwig said.

"In addition, some women see the abuser as a needy person that they can help, and they stay in the relationship for that reason," Dallwig said.

Through the therapy process, Dallwig hopes to enable the women to see their situation realistically and to take steps to protect themselves from further abuse.

Victims aided Publicity sparks interest in seeking help

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
MCN Managing Editor

If there is any positive aspect of the unprecedented media coverage of the O.J. Simpson trial, it is that the publicity has awakened many women to the seriousness of spouse abuse.

"There is a definite increase in the number of women coming to us with spouse abuse as their primary problem," said Roger Dallwig, owner-director of His/Her Place Counseling Center. "The publicity of the trial has prompted more women to see spouse abuse as a problem and to motivate them to get help."

Not all women who seek counseling for abuse are victims of physical actions, Dallwig said. Many are victims of emotional abuse - a situation that often precedes physical abuse.

"Often, I refer victims of domestic violence to a female staff member who has worked extensively with the problem," Dallwig said.

"In therapy, our focus is to enable the client to be safe and to have a plan of escape if her situation becomes too dangerous," Dallwig said. "We explore the reasons why they want to stay in the abusive re-

100,000 battered men seek treatment for abuse

By IVAN HELFMAN

Wives can be equal opportunity spouse abusers. They attack their husbands as frequently as they are the victims of their husbands attacks. However, the statistics are misleading, according to the director of a shelter for victims of domestic violence.

"While it's statistically true that the rates of abuse are equal, it is categorically false because there are differences between an abused spouse and a battered one," said Judy Ellis, executive director of First Step, western Wayne County's largest domestic violence and sexual assault center. "Battered implies a physical injury, while abuse can be verbal.

"Women are on the short end of the stick," she continued. "When a woman hits a man five times, the man laughs. But a man can hit a woman once in face and knock her head into the wall."

The phrase "battered husband syndrome" was coined in the mid-1970s after researcher Suzanne Steinmetz published a paper based on surveys that indicated that rate of husband and wife abuse were equal.

Ironically, when the research was published, "radical feminists" harassed the researchers and threatened to kill them, according to recent

Only five percent of women are violent, but women are victims of violence and extreme fear 95 percent of the time.

Detroit Free Press article.

"The research was twisted and slanted," Ellis said. "Only five percent of women are violent, but women are victims of violence and extreme fear 95 percent of the time. Women suffer greater damage physically as well as emotionally. Our shelters are overcrowded by battered women."

Ellis said that there are 2 to 4 million battered women and doesn't compare, in frequency and terror, to what women receive. Generally, the men don't live in fear and they can leave home any time."

Most abused men report feelings of frustration and powerlessness, said Ellis. They are men who were either raised not to be violent, or grew up in a home where they witnessed women striking or throwing things. "At First Step, men do not stay in treatment long," she said. "They get some validation of their problems and possible solutions. We help them look at their own issues and decide what they want. We help him decide if she will eventually stop."

Often the wife will be asked to join the therapy but a cure is not automatic. Abusers can only change if they want to and if they will accept the responsibility for their violent behavior, Ellis said. If not, First Step counselors help the husband consider other options: Should he end the relationship? Is there a way out? How does the situation impact on the children?

The number of battered husbands calling the police is meager.

"We get battered husbands once in a blue moon," said Mark Perkins, Van Buren Township director of public safety.

Domestic violence charges double in Romulus community

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Domestic violence cases in Romulus have more than doubled since July 1994, Romulus Detective Sgt. Cora Semrau revealed last week, since victims no longer have the option as to whether violence charges will be filed or not.

Michigan law, which took effect last July, took the decision out of the hands of victims and gave it to the Wayne County Prosecutor's office as to whether criminal complaints should be filed in domestic violence matters.

One of the reasons listed at that time was that on too many occasions police would spend extensive investigative periods on a complaint, and then at the last minute the victim would drop the charge.

Today in Romulus, the uniform officer writes out the first complaints in domestic violence cases, Semrau said, and those reports are then faxed to the prosecutor's office.

Semrau said she gets involved with cases that involve weapons and also coordinates all the jackets (files) of domestic violence cases.

In addition to domestic violence cases, Semrau also handles many of the child and sexual abuse cases.

The Police Department representatives also are required to give all the abuse victims information on their legal rights, as well as a listing of all the different support organizations that are available to help them.

One of the elements that helps keep the abuse cases in check is the "plea bargain" program available for first time offenders. Local judges are allowed to approve a plea bargain as long as they pledge not to adversely contact the victim for at least a year.

"That is done because many times the defendant and victim need to contact each other during that period, because of the needs of their children, joint property, etc.," Semrau said.

But if the defendant steps across the line drawn in the legal sand, he can be treated harshly by the judge.

But the change in the procedures started last July 1 has proved it is not a "cure all," Semrau said, as there already have been some repeat offenders.

Most of the cases so far have been pretty much the "hands on hands" attack style, she said, but one much more troubling case will be heard in the 34th District Court on March 8.

"That is a case in which a husband threatened his wife with a large kitchen butcher knife and officers arriving at the scene had to disarm him," Semrau said.

"We definitely will be watching that one," she said.

A lot more public education needs to be done on family violence actions, Semrau said, as many people think it only relates to husbands and wives.

"In reality it also means roommates, ex-spouses, persons who are parents of the same kids, etc.," Semrau said.

All the victims are not thrilled the way the system works, as they get squimish when charges are filed.

had another one where the husband beat her so severely that she is in a vegetable state for life."

Some of the spouse abuse cases in Wayne do have a happy ending where the batterer and victim receive counseling and support, and the family is reunited, according to Archbold.

"You need to get the batterer into counseling to learn to fight fair," said Archbold. "No one has the right to control anyone else. I've had a few success stories where the husband who abused the wife came back into my court after receiving counseling, walked in with his children and thanked me for helping him get back with his family."

"What I want to see is the family functioning in a non-violent manner."

Archbold said the abuser in the family is generally not mentally ill.

"They often become spouse abusers if they grew up in a family and saw their mother or father being abusive," said Archbold. "They may have had a personal experience where they themselves were abused before they got married. The misperception is drugs and alcohol make the batterer act as he or she does."

"What you actually have are two problems: the drugs and the alcohol and then the spouse abuse."

If women become victims of abuse, Archbold said First Step is where they should first reach for assistance.

"Here at the court we have counseling for the batterer and the victim," said Archbold. "By attending the counseling sessions, the batterer and victim will realize that they are not alone in their situations and that they can get help."

Archbold said spouse abuse is a crime that is being committed by two people who do love each other.

"It doesn't matter if they are rich or poor, it crosses all boundaries," said Archbold.

The cold you feel right now is how thousands of families feel 24 hours a day.

This year, thousands of men, women and children will be cold due to a financial hardship. For them, the thought of winter's cold only brings doubt and fear. Whether they are unexpectedly unemployed or the working poor, they will endure the chill of winter without the protection of a warm home. You can help prevent this by contributing to The Heat And Warmth (THAW) Fund.

THAW is a non-profit organization which helps struggling families in 11 Southeastern Michigan counties keep their heat on. It is the last resort for families who have exhausted all other possible resources. Since 1986, THAW has assisted over 15,000 families, more than half with children. Yet, THAW is not considered a handout, but a helping hand, for less than 10% of the recipients are repeat cases.

Once again, Detroit Edison is supporting THAW's efforts. Every dollar you donate will be matched by Detroit Edison and will go directly to help those in need. So, as the nights grow longer, please remember the families who grow colder.

Abuse

nifer recalled an episode around Christmas time when her daughter was only two years old.

"We took her to see Santa. She was all dressed up in this pretty dress with tights and my husband purposely stuck his foot out and tripped her. I had always hoped she would not remember."

Jennifer's daughter sought counseling briefly after she became physically abusive to her mother, a common occurrence with abusive families.

She admitted to Jennifer that being tripped was one of her earliest memories of her father.

Jennifer's abuse reached a peak in the late 1980s.

"I was more terrified of him mentally than I was physically," said Jennifer. "He was a master of mind games and I became so entangled in the abuse I didn't know how to get out."

Another factor besides terror that kept her from leaving was her lack of skills. The 48-year-old housewife who was never allowed to work or barely permitted to drive was facing the reality of leaving her husband, getting an apartment and a job all on her own.

In May of 1992 after the police were called to settle a domestic dispute, the officer suggested Jennifer seek help from First Step. The organization located in Canton provides counseling and shelter for battered women.

Jennifer initially attended

First Step secretly because her husband felt the police and her counselors were trying to control her. "He would have probably killed me if he found out I was going, he wasn't in control at the meetings, I was," said Jennifer.

Individual and group counseling is just one step on the road to recovery, with the first being the realization that the victim is not the cause of the problem. First Step, located at 44978 Ford Road Suite C in Canton, places women with facilitators that help them deal with the abuse.

"I'm a veteran of the group now. In the beginning though I didn't say much. Now I speak often and I feel like what I'm saying is a great inspiration for the new women," said Jennifer. "We're all talking about the same man, giving each other inspiration to leave and save ourselves."

Jennifer has been divorced from her spouse for a year, living on her own working at a job.

"Part of me loves him and at the same time feels sorry for him. He was mentally and sexually abused as a child," said Jennifer.

Although Jennifer has been in recovery for more than two years she still finds herself wondering when the phone rings if it is her ex-spouse calling to say he's sorry and wrong.

"I feel sadness knowing it (marriage) was never the dream I wanted it to be," said Jennifer.

The physical strains of an abusive relationship has taken a heavy toll on Mary of Westland. The pain she has suffered over the years and the list of injuries is endless, a broken nose, kidney failure, broken ribs, foot, collar bone, hip bone, various venereal diseases, and the loss of some of her cognitive memory.

"There are incidents of my life I can no longer remember, he beat them out of me," said Mary.

Mary and Todd met at a church function more than 10 years ago.

"We had a romantic courtship and we were married within four months of our first meeting," said Mary. It was only two weeks after the marriage that Todd became verbally abusive and in five weeks he was physically abusing her.

"I remember we had been to a doctor about some medication I was on. The doctor suggested I wait a year before becoming pregnant because of the medication. When we got home Todd was so angry, not believing the doctor, that he raped me to prove the doctor wrong," she said.

As a result Mary became pregnant delivering a mentally retarded child.

Mary's situation is different from Jennifer's in that her husband forced her to work, desiring extra money for things he wanted denying Mary others.

"I wasn't allowed to sleep for an extended period of time," said Mary. "He controlled everything about me including my eating patterns, my hair style, the clothes I wore and where I went, never going anywhere on my own besides work."

The two women share similarities in their spouses' abusive patterns. Mary's husband also checked her mileage, had affairs, and arranged for a tap on her phone.

The thing Mary finds most upsetting is their son, Michael. "Todd wouldn't allow our son in the home when he was off on the weekends," said Mary. "He would make me send him to my mother's saying he was only half the son he wanted."

Her son is now 12 with the mental capacity of a second grader. Mary admits he was very aware of his father's problem, trying to defend his mother during fights.

Mary has been divorced from Todd since 1992 but still feels as if they are married. She and her son live with her mother and are harassed daily by hang-ups, cars stopping in front of their home, people running through their backyard, and repeated damage to their property. Todd has just begun supervised visitation with his son that is preventing Mary from the leaving the state to start a new life and a new job.

"The change in custody has resulted in me not being able to leave with my mother. I get child support, but it's not enough. I want to have a job and get away from him," said Mary.

Mary has been in counseling for three years and feels the groups help validate the abuse. Women are able to share their experiences and understand what they went through was not only real but that they were not the cause of the abuse.

Both women aren't sure if they'll ever get away from these men completely. Even with the help of their family and the counselors at First Step the abuser still finds ways to invade their personal safety.

"I think he's going to finish what he started. To be honest I think I'll become another statistic, and I won't make it out alive," said Mary.

Editor's note: For more information on counseling or shelter individuals may call First Step at 453-9595 or the Westland Counseling Center at 425-0636.

Eagle VIP Special Page

Michigan Community Newspapers is offering a unique first-of-its-kind savings program to our readers. We call it the Eagle VIP Card, which you can easily obtain by calling our offices at 729-4000.

There is no special trick or extra cost to begin using the VIP CARD. All you have to do is obtain a copy of this newspaper, look inside for the special VIP pages, decide which discounts you want to take advantage of, and then go to the participating place of business and present your EAGLE VIP CARD. Upon presentation of the EAGLE VIP CARD you qualify for the special VIP pages in the newspaper.

Participating businesses have been encouraged to offer the very best discounts. You won't find coupons or offers in other publications that are better deals than the offers advertised in this newspaper. And you don't have to waste time cutting coupons out to take advantage of the deals. All you have to do is present your card to the appropriate business and the savings are automatically yours.

Finally, your VIP CARD is good for a year. We would hope that you become accustomed to using the card over and over each and every time you need to make a purchase. Naturally, it is equally important to subscribe to Michigan Community Newspapers to ascertain which businesses are participating and what special discounts that they are offering. We are constantly adding new businesses to the VIP PROGRAM and they often are changing their specials on a weekly basis, so it pays to check this page out often. For additional information feel free to call us, anytime. Just dial 729-4000.

Western Wayne residents, notables share March celebrations

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
MCN Managing Editor

The month of March is not only popular for the birthdays of many notable people, but it is the month when spring arrives and the greens. The biggest "green" celebration is March 17, when everyone becomes Irish for a day to celebrate St. Patrick's Day. On the day before, not to be outdone by the Irish, the Finns of Northern Michigan have established St. Urho's Day on March 16 for their own celebration.

Jennifer Cornell, the 1994 National Strawberry Festival queen, celebrates her birthday on March 2, and Van Buren Public Schools student Megan Daniels observes her birthday on March 10. Fellow students, Matthew Dalton, born March 16 and Ormani Everett, born March 14, also are celebrating this month.

Scott Shepard of Belleville will be 8 on March 23, and Priscilla Nerswick, a Belleville Area Goodfellow, observes her birthday on March 10.

For Michigan Community Newspapers, March is the birthday month for one of its six community newspapers, the Belleville Enterprise.

Founded by A.E. Smith and Roscoe Begole on March 10, 1886, the Enterprise is observing its 109th birthday this year. A reception honoring the newspaper is scheduled between 4:30 and 6 p.m. March 22 at the Enterprise office, 116 Fourth St., Belleville.

Celebrity birthdays include actor David Niven and actress/singer Dinah Shore, March 1; Texas hero Sam Houston and children's writer, Dr. Suess, March 2; telephone inventor Alexander Graham Bell and actress Jean Harlow, March 3, and actor Rex Harrison, March 5.

Poet Elizabeth Barrett Browning was born on March 6 and actor Daniel Travanti was born on March 7.

Other notables born in March are actress Lillian Gish and band leader Lawrence Welk, March 11; actress/singer Liza Minnelli and writer Jack Kerouac, March 12; singer Neil Sedaka, March 13; Albert Einstein and actor Michael Craine, March 14; President Andrew Jackson and actor Judd

Residents can duck out of snow, sleet for day

How much do you hate Michigan winters?

The best answer could provide you with a one-day getaway to Nassau - away from the snow, freezing rain and ice-covered roads.

Do you hate the long, gray winters? Do you loathe the snow that clogs traffic and piles up on your driveway and sidewalk?

Or do you hate the sneaky nature of winter that lulls you into a false sense of security in mid-February with mild temperatures and then - when you are completely unaware and off guard - dumps snow and freezing rain on Michigan residents?

The best answer, in 35 words or less, will earn the writer a one-day trip to Nassau. The winner will fly out of Metro Airport in the early morning and spend the day shopping at the marketplaces, relaxing on the beach, swimming in the pool or gambling at the Crystal Palace Resort and Casino in Nassau. Then, in the late evening, the winner - hopefully with an attractive light tan - will return to Western Wayne County.

As an added incentive, we report that the temperature in the Bahamas is in the mid-80s this week.

Submit entries to Winter Getaway, Michigan Community Newspapers, 35540 Michigan Ave., Wayne, Mich. 48184 by March 10. Entries should include the name, address and day phone number of the person submitting the entry.

Our only stipulation is that the person must be 18 years of age or older.

One-Day Fun Trips to Nassau, Bahamas, are provided by Hamilton, Miller, Hudson & Fayne Travel Corp. on Tuesdays through May 3.

Parenting in the 90s

Mothers of Multiples share family values, dreams, ambitions for their twins, triplets

Parenting is a commitment for a lifetime. For one group of mothers, however, it's also a career where they end up wearing many hats in their home a day including those of a chef, house cleaner, wardrobe designer, teacher, nurse, driver, entertainer, counselor, peace maker and best friend.

The Mothers of Multiples in western Wayne County consists of a group of women who are the proud parents of either twins or triplets.

They meet at least once a month to offer support and friendship to one another because they know what the other has to go through on a daily basis.

For instance, in a survey conducted by the Michigan Community Newspapers, the mothers were asked a slew of questions including how many diapers they go through a week and the average grocery bill.

For the most part, out of 20 mothers polled, they had an average of three children, spent between $75 to $100 a week on groceries and used anywhere between 60 to 144 diapers a week.

When asked about one of the most important aspects of parenting in the 1990s, Canton Township resident Linda Quinn said it centers around giving enough time to her children.

"Juggling the time you spend with your children and husband can sometimes be difficult, but you have to make the time," said Quinn.

Quinn is the mother of four including twins boys who will be 3 years old in April. She said as a family, activities are set aside for each of the children.

"In the summertime we go for a lot of walks with the kids," Quinn said. "We don't really take all of them together to places because it can be overwhelming."

Sue Micek of Plymouth has triplets, two boys and a girl, said a typical day with her three children starts out with eating breakfast together and watching Barney and Sesame Street.

"We eat lunch together and then they go down for a nap," said Micek. "When dad comes home, we play together. It's when they are napping I get a chance to do the house cleaning and dishes."

Micek does not work, but she said if she had the opportunity to select her dream job it would be a speech therapist.

For Westland resident Shelly Weir, one of the best aspects about having twin 9-year-old boys is she gets lots of attention. When asked what she lets her children watch on television, she said they really don't spend time in front of the television.

"My kids are really into playing outside," said Weir. "They like basketball, baseball, indoor soccer. If they do watch television, it's mostly game shows. My kids have a race track in the basement they enjoy. They are really mainly into computers."

Not many people enjoy going to the grocery store, and the average person shops once a week. But, when you have three children including a set of twins like Westland resident Cheryl Bidlingmaier, grocery shopping starts to feel as if you live at the market.

"I spend about $100 a week, and I go what seems like every day, but only twice a week," said Bidlingmaier.

Bidlingmaier said she has a hard time finding nutritious food for her family.

"You can only have the spaghetti, the chicken breast so many ways," said Bidlingmaier. "The little kids like the macaroni and cheese, pasta."

Bidlingmaier is one of the few mothers out of the 20 polled that works. In fact, she juggles two jobs during the day including being a waitress.

The results of the rest of the survey are as follows:

• Two family income—Only three mothers polled out of 20 work.

• Number of bottles you go through a week?—Those polled said between 50 to 80 bottles a week.

• How much time do you set aside for yourself each day?—Mothers said two hours.

• What are some of the best aspects of having twins or triplets?—They will be playmates for a lifetime; You get lots of attention; There is always someone to play with; It's fun to watch them play; The Hugs-being there when one discovers something and then shows his twin; and Watching the bond grow between them.

Any area resident interested in joining the Mothers of Multiples group can contact Weir at 326-1466.

Well zoning hearing delayed

The second (and possibly final) Romulus environmental liquid injection well zoning hearing slated for this Thursday has been delayed until March 22, Zoning Board of Appeals member Norman McLenon confirmed Friday.

The first hearing date of the week (Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.) will go on as scheduled, McLenon said.

That hearing probably will conclude the Environmental Disposal System (EDS) case seeking zoning approval of its deep well operations on Wahrman Road.

The request for a delay on the scheduled hearing on Thursday night was made by the city, citing the fact that one of its attorneys, Steve Winter, had a schedule conflict and would not be able to make that hearing.

Since that is expected to be the session that the city presses its case against the zoning location of the well and the fact that EDS has been granted previous postponements, the ZBA approved the delay.

Both hearings will take place in the Romulus City Hall City Council Chambers.

3 candidates seek Canton clerk's post

Two Republican candidates and one Democrat are seeking their party nominations in the March 7 primary race for the township clerk's post in Canton Township.

The leading candidates will face off on April 18 in a special election to fill the vacancy created when former clerk Loren Bennett resigned to take the Senate post he was elected to in the November polling.

Seeking the seat are Republicans Terry Bennett, a teacher and wife of the former clerk, and Ralph Schufeldt, an account executive with a securities firm and secretary-treasurer of the Downtown Development Authority.

The lone Democrat seeking the post is Michigan State University graduate Kathleen Raven, who is seeking her first elected post.

The polls open at 7 a.m. Tuesday and close at 8 p.m.

Pitoniak to speak on deep well bills

State Rep. Gregory Pitoniak (D-Taylor) has accepted an invitation to speak before the Romulus City Council at 7:30 a.m. March 27 on the contents of his two anti-deep well bills currently in the Michigan House of Representatives.

Romulus Councilman Ellis Pennington asked Mayor Beverly McAnally if Pitoniak could attend such a meeting, since there is confusion in the minds of many about what his ban on future commercial injection wells will include.

Knox is convicted of cop killing

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

A Wayne County jury on Thursday convicted Christopher Knox in the June 17 shooting death of Inkster Patrolman Kenneth Woodmore.

The jury deliberated less than one and one-half days and brought back a verdict of guilty on all three counts: first-degree murder, assault with the intent to murder, and the use of a firearm during the commission of a felony against the 23-year-old Knox.

Recorder's Court Judge Cynthia Hathaway set sentencing for later this month.

Knox and his attorney, Marc Randall Lakin, were not available for comment before press time.

"No words that we say or write will ever bring officer Woodmore back. He was a fine officer whose memory remains with us all."

Police Chief Terry Colwell

Inkster law enforcement officers greeted the jury's verdict with mixed emotions.

"No words that we say or write will ever bring officer Woodmore back," said Inkster Police Chief Terry Colwell. "He was a fine officer whose memory remains with us all."

"However, the jury's verdict offers some level of justice, and we are pleased with it."

Colwell went on to commend "all of the people - the State Police, the local officers and the Prosecutor's office - who worked diligently to put the case together case against the defendant."

Officer Woodmore was on duty around 1 a.m. and, while patrolling the area of Pine and Henry streets when he observed a suspicious person, later identified as Knox. In testimony offered in court, by witnesses, Woodmore stopped to check the subject when he was gunned down.

Woodmore, 33, was pronounced dead on arrival at Annapolis Hospital.

Accused killer receives birthday gift early

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

An Inkster man, who turned 20 on Feb. 27, may have received his best birthday gift ever from the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office.

He won't be prosecuted for murder.

Not for now, anyway.

Inkster police said the man, a suspect in a fatal shooting, was released after the prosecutor's office refused to issue a murder warrant, stating there was not enough evidence and the homicide may have been committed in self-defense.

"But our investigation will continue," said Inkster Detective Richard Rashad, who is in charge of the investigation into the shooting death of Michael Nolen.

Nolen was left in a pool of blood in the living room of a house located in the 26000 block of Stanford. He was shot once, the bullet apparently striking the victim's heart after entering the body from the left upper chest.

According to witnesses, Nolen and a cousin were involved in an argument over money sometime during the afternoon of Feb. 21 in the house on Stanford. Witnesses told police that Nolen and the cousin, who police refused to identify, exchanged words and Nolen apparently produced a gun. The cousin attempted to wrestle the weapon away from Nolen.

During the altercation the weapon went off, the bullet fatally wounding Nolen, according to witnesses' statements.

The suspect, who was in the house with his girlfriend and an acquaintance, raced out of the house and jumped into a car. As they ran to the vehicle, witnesses told police, the suspect shouted to neighbors that a man had been shot and that they should call police.

When police arrived on the scene, they discovered Nolen lying in the living room. The officers asked the wounded Nolen who shot him but he died before he could reply.

Nolen was pronounced dead on arrival at Annapolis Hospital in Wayne.

Police also stated in their initial report of the shooting, when Nolen's body was moved on to stretchers, they found a bottle that contained 14 pieces of suspected rock cocaine under his body.

Police apprehend murder suspect

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

A 33-year-old Inkster man was apparently shot and killed because he refused to purchase drugs from his accused killer, police believe.

David Brown Jr. was shot once in the head by an alleged small-time drug dealer who was arrested earlier this week by Wayne County deputies and handed over to Inkster for prosecution.

Police identified the suspect as Gregory Darnell Housch, who they say will be charged with second-degree murder. Housch was to be arraigned Thursday afternoon in 22nd District Court before Judge Sylvia James.

Known on the streets by the name "Blue," Housch was linked to that name by a witness who told police that the suspect uses the alias. Housch has been the target of a state-wide search since last October.

When the story initially appeared in the Inkster Ledger Star, a reader stepped forward and informed police that she knew a subject who went by the name. The tip paid off, police said.

"That information helped us in our investigation," said Inkster Detective Richard Rashad, "and we are thankful for the help."

On Oct. 1, 1994, Brown, his girlfriend, and a man known to police by the name of "Black" went to the Williams and Pine street area to purchase drugs, according to Inkster police.

Although the vehicle belonged to the man identified only in police reports by an alias, "Black," the victim drove. Once at Pine and Williams, a high drug-trafficking area, Brown parked in front of a red house on Williams where at least three men were seated on the porch.

Brown shouted to the men and one of them responded: "Is that you, David?," according to the witness.

Then, the three men approached the vehicle to discuss the purchasing of drugs.

Suddenly, a man known to the group as "Blue" walked up and asked Brown: "Why you can't never buy anything from me?"

Brown reportedly replied: "I'm talking to this man. Not you."

Blue again repeated his question: "Why you can't never buy anything from me?"

When Brown apparently ignored the question, the witness told police that "Blue" pulled out a gun and she "saw the flame from the barrel and Dave's head go back."

The killer ran from the scene of the shooting and disappeared.

The occupants in the car quickly drove from the scene and headed from Annapolis Hospital in Wayne where they

$378,000 missing Woman accused of bilking elderly couple

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

The 163-count embezzlement trial of a 36-year-old Romulus mother, who is charged with taking $378,000 from an Alzheimer's patient, will open Monday before Recorder's Court Judge Geraldine Ford in Detroit.

Kathy Ann Frye reportedly was hired by the victim's husband to care for his wife, an Alzheimer's patient, who is now 79 years old.

Frye, who is a neighbor of the elderly couple, was hired to drive the woman to various shopping areas and other social outings, but was not empowered to handle any of the family's financial dealings, Detective Sgt. Dan Snyder said last week.

A relative of the victim notified Romulus police in July 1993 that the elderly couple's finances were severely depleted, and at least $200,000 in certificates of deposit had been cashed.

Frye was originally charged with a single count covering the total amount, but that charge was later dropped and a total of 163 counts were filed in its place.

Investigators claim that Frye took a total of $378,000 from the victimized family during a period of several years.

Police charge that Frye induced the victim to remove her husband's name from several CDs and to replace his name with hers at an out-of-town branch of the family's bank. Later, police said, Frye cashed in the CDs.

Some of the rest of the money was embezzled through cashing of checks, Snyder said.

Each of the 163 charges have four alternative counts: embezzlement, larceny over $100, larceny by trick and larceny by conversion.

Snyder said the victimized couple worked all their lives for two different auto companies and banked most of their savings.

Since the arrest of Frye, authorities have effected a search warrant on the defendant's home and reportedly confiscated an undisclosed amount of items, which could be auctioned off if Frye is convicted of the charges.

Women receive honors

When the YWCA of Western Wayne County hosted its 51st annual meeting and awards presentation last week, 12 women were honored.

The program was highlighted by a speech by Dr. Sharon Elliot, assistant dean of the College of Education, Wayne State University, and music provided by the Dearborn Community Chorale.

Outstanding service awards were presented to Penelope Redd-Myles of the Child Care Center; Nancy Kiras of the Child & Family Neighborhood Program in Westland and to Kenna Kennedy of the CFNP of Inkster; Sanaa Sherhal and Stephanie AlSalah of Dearborn Head Start; Julie Rees, Dorsey Day Camp; Sue Ann Dunham, Encore; Minnie Ward, Informats; Feeda Ham-moud, Chante Green, Westwood Day Camp; Katherine Howard, Y-We-Go, and LaTisha Garner of Y-Teens.

Three women from AAA Michigan were honored with Community Service Awards. Mitzie DeAngelis, Margaret St. Andre and Peggy Radike were honored for coordinating the Annual Women of Achievement Awards Luncheon in November, 1994. Also honored with a community service was YWCA board member Jacquelyn McClure of Jacque Consulting.

The recipient of the 1995 Volunteer Award for Meritorious Service was presented to YWCA President Barbara Gepford by the 1994 honoree Edna Parker.

Volunteer awards were presented to Lorraine Patterson in 1993, Margaret Glatfleiter in 1992, Jeannette Turner in 1991, Mary Ruth Ross in 1990 and Dr. Callie Hester in 1989.

At the Feb. 28 meeting, the following women were named to three-year terms on the YWCA of Western Wayne County Board of Directors: Shereen Arraf, Barbara Gepford, Jennifer Granholm, 22nd District Court Judge Sylvia James of Inkster, Dr. Hattie Johnson, dean of the Western Center of Wayne County Community College, Margaret Keyes, Betty Ann Lipa, Margaret St. Andre and Joan Dyer-Zinner

Create the future YWCA molds ideas to fit current needs

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
MCN Managing Editor

To keep pace with the everchanging needs of society, the staff of the YWCA of Western Wayne County constantly assesses its programs and offerings.

"We have shifted our focus to involve parents and younger children," said YWCA Executive Director Corinne Vincent. "Early intervention provides a better chance to influence the child."

Vincent said the focus formerly was on programs to aid youths in crisis - after the fact.

Now, the programs being implemented hope to intervene at an early age to, hopefully, head off some of the problems before they develop.

"The YWCA still has support groups for kids in crisis that meet at the schools. They discuss gangs, drugs, violence, family problems and whatever is bothering them. Sometimes, their problems revolve around a divorce in their family," Vincent said. "One young girl has been paired with a mentor through the YWCA and has shown a great deal of improvement. Her younger years were spent in a family where there was drug use, violence and the shooting death of a family member."

"We have taken our programs to the neighbors, and we are working with parents to improve their parenting skills," Vincent said.

"While children of past generations had a network of family members to aid in their upbringing, some of the young parents of today do not have a support system, Vincent said. Others have abdicated their role as parents to the schools or other institutions.

The YWCA outreach extends to programs in Dearborn and to housing projects in Inkster and Westland where they provide young mothers with coping skills and teach them about appropriate discipline and expectations.

"We also encourage the young women to take an active part in their community and to take on a broader view than that of their own group," Vincent said.

"A major problem in this area is infant mortality. Inkster rates right after Detroit in having the highest infant mortality rate," Vincent said. "We are helping young women to understand the correlation between their drinking, drug use and poor dietary habits with serious problems to the children born to them. We also encourage women to have their children immunized. It has been surprising to me to find that many children - not infants - have not had one shot."

Immunization clinics have been set up to correct this problem.

"We're getting a School Readiness program off the ground for children who don't qualify for Head Start. It will include home visits and field trips," Vincent said. "Right now, we are focusing on the Inkster and Westwood area because of transportation concerns."

The program is being funded by a $108,000 grant from the Michigan Department of Education.

"We also have an active Encore Plus group here. It was organized as a support group for women who have had breast surgery, but it has added a public awareness program to its focus," Vincent said. "They will present programs to women's groups encouraging them to be tested for breast and cervical cancer. They also work to overcome women's fears of the disease."

The YWCA also is assisting Garden City Hospital in an educational campaign on diabetes.

Group has 'lighter' side

"We've got a lighter side. All of our programs aren't of a serious nature," said the executive director of the YWCA of Western Wayne County.

Corinne Vincent noted that the YWCA has sponsored trips to see plays, art exhibits and dine at new restaurants.

"We've also had some weekend trips to Toronto and Chicago," she said.

One of the popular trips taken last year was a visit to the Toledo Art Museum to view the Age of Reubens exhibit. The group also scheduled trips to see a Rogers and Hammerstein musical at the Fisher Theater and a Detroit River cruise on a mini-riverboat.

"We have a bridge group of both men and women who meet here on Wednesdays to play cards," Vincent said. "We also have social clubs that perform community services."

The Informats organized in 1960 as a social club which meets twice monthly. The group underwrote the YWCA Take Our Daughters to Work Day breakfast last April.

They support the YWCA with volunteer service and gifts to the building campaign. From time to time, the group has selected a needy student to receive a graduation wardrobe or sponsorship to the Special Olympics.

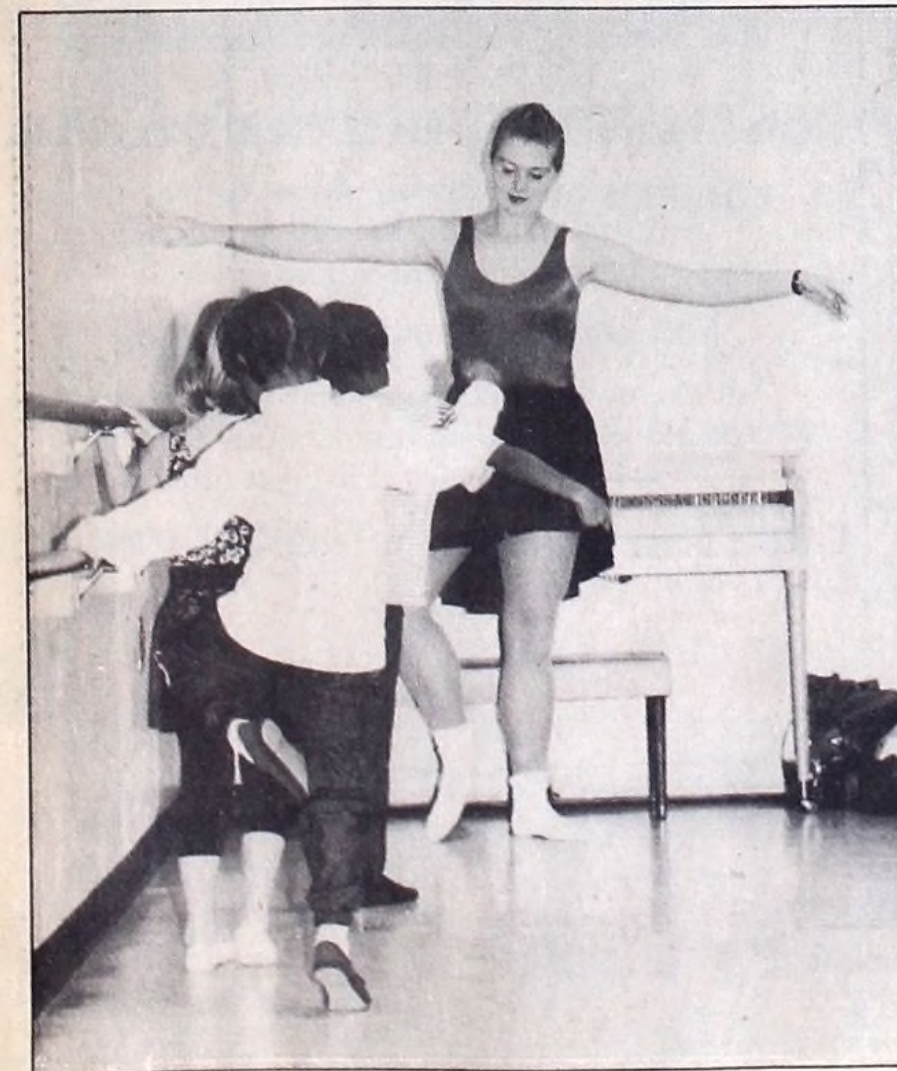

Y-We-Go was formed 40 years ago as a social club, but its members also help the underprivileged.

"We are always on the go," said member Agnes Harrison, commenting on the origin of the group's name.

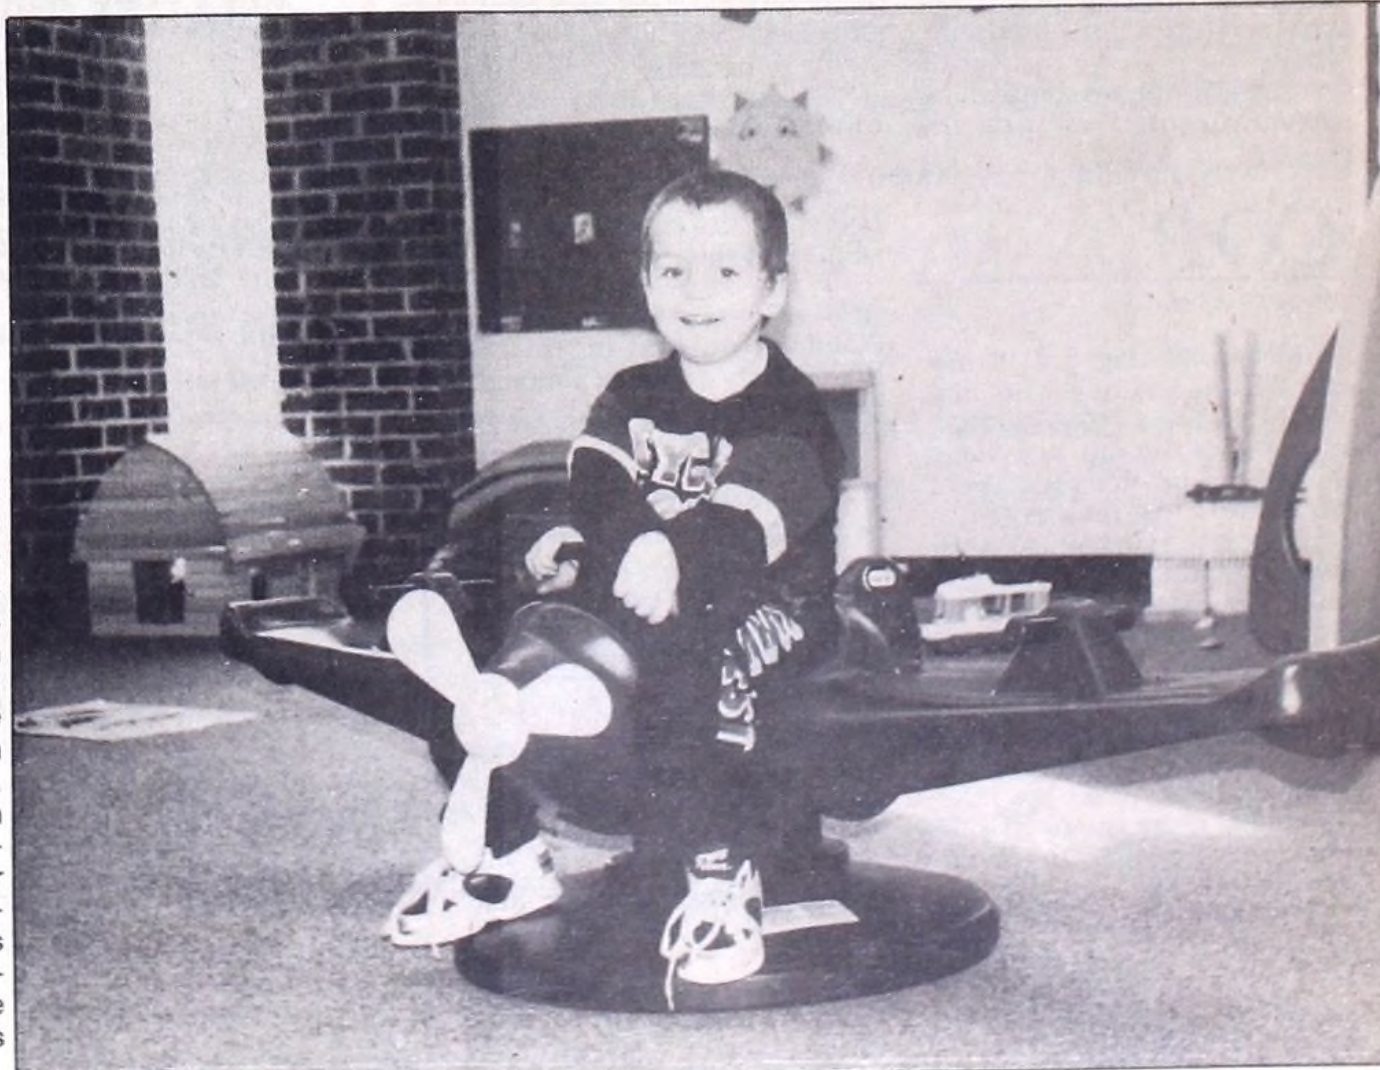

They meet from 7 to 9 p.m. and second and fourth Mondays of each month at the YWCA.

Traditional rivals clash in district basketball playoffs

By TOM MCORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

Belleville coach Michael Garland said he had some concerns about his team, and that his Tigers weren't "playing very well at this time."

A team that was ranked in some state polls as high as sixth two weeks ago, Belleville stood at the doorsteps of an undefeated Mega Conference Red Division basketball season before it slipped at Wayne, fell at Fordson and now finds itself attempting to pick up the pieces.

The fall couldn't have come at a worst time - Belleville will host a Class A district tournament and is slated to play a Romulus team that is riding the crest of a eight-game winning streak.

Belleville and Romulus square off at 6:30 p.m. Monday, in the first round of the district playoffs, and the winner has the dubious honor of playing none other than Wayne Memorial.

Wayne stunned Belleville 64-46 in its last encounter and, with the help of a Fordson upset over Belleville, owns a share of the conference title. Wayne will play the winner of the Belleville-Romulus game on Wednesday.

In the meantime, over in the other bracket, there's Westland John Glenn, with towering 6-11 All-State candidate Guy Rucker eager and ready to defend the district title, a title they parlayed into a regional championship and an inaugural appearance in the state quarterfinals one year ago.

There could also possibly be a rematch between the two natural rivals, Glenn and Wayne, for the district title. How time flies.

The championship at Belleville will be decided Friday night at 7.

Here are the district pairings for local teams in our area:

Inkster man to stand trial for Ann Arbor rapes, murder

By TOM MCORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

Although he has publicly said he is innocent and that a "lot of people are going to apologize to him afterwards", accused killer and rapist, Inkster native Ervin D. Mitchell will face examination in the Ann Arbor serial rapes and murder.

Mitchell, 33, who has been arrested but never charged in at least one Inkster rape, was arraigned Thursday in the Ann Arbor rapes and the murder-sexual assault of Christine Gailbreath.

Gailbreath was sexually assaulted and murdered on May 7, 1994 in Ann Arbor.

According to Ann Arbor police, DNA tests of samples of Mitchell's blood and body fluids link him with the Ann Arbor rapes and the murder.

Mitchell, accompanied by his court-appointed attorney David Lankford, appeared in 14th District Court Magistrate George Parker in Washtenaw County and pleaded "not guilty" to all of the charges.

Mitchell was ordered detained, without bond, in the Washtenaw County Jail until March 15 when a preliminary hearing will be conducted to determine whether Mitchell should be bound over to stand trial.

An outstanding athlete who turned to softball after his high school career ended, Mitchell was suspected in a 1992 sexual assault in the city of Inkster, according to Inkster Detective James Vergona.

Vergona said that medical evidence was inconclusive therefore, no warrant was ever issued. The case is still open, Vergona said.

However, shortly after his release, Mitchell apparently left the city of Inkster and moved to Ann Arbor.

Reportedly, it was a DNA sample taken in the sexual assault in Inkster that apparently proved to be a match with Mitchell's DNA in the Ann Arbor cases which helped bolster law enforcement's case against the defendant.

Mitchell has not been linked to the six sex-murders of Inkster women in Inkster which occurred during a 24-month span in 1989-1990. In the Inkster cases, all but one of the victims were prostitutes who were sexually assaulted, tied with rope or clothing and then slain. The Inkster pattern doesn't fit the Ann Arbor rapes and murder, police said.

"The M.O. just doesn't fit," said an Inkster police officer who spoke on the condition of anonymity. "But who knows. Anything is possible."

Man accused of assaulting estranged wife is cleared

A 30-year-old Westland man was found not guilty of charges that he attempted to sexually assault his estranged wife.

John Kujat was cleared of the charges by Judge Robert Townsend in a Feb. 13 bench trial in Recorder's Court, Detroit.

Kujat, who is the father of four children, said he now wants to clear his name and get on with his life.

"The court case was over in the matter of a few minutes," Kujat said.

The Westland father of four, who is now legally divorced from his spouse, said he wants to keep his home and gain custody of his children.

"I want to continue where I left off before this happened," Kujat said.

Kujat said he would like to resume volunteer work in the schools.

"Even though I work the midnight shift, I had been volunteering in the schools. I put in 160 hours of service," Kujat said.

The alleged incident which prompted the charges occurred during the first week of June when Kujat and his spouse, were residing at the same home on Dely Street. Previous to that time, they had been living together on and off, according to the police report.

According to Westland police, a misdemeanor stalking charge also had been filed against Kujat for an incident that allegedly took place on July 10.

Westland man accused of assault

A Westland man will face charges of felonious assault in 18th District Court after stabbing a friend several times.

The assault occurred after an argument and physical dispute occurred between the victim and the attacker's wife on Feb. 25.

The alleged incident occurred at the attacker's home where the victim and his girlfriend were invited over for drinks. The victim became engaged in a verbal dispute with the attacker's wife in the kitchen where the victim allegedly pushed the woman.

According to police reports the couple left the party and returned later to pick up some personal articles left at the home. The attacker, enraged about the fight that took place between his wife and the victim, ran out of his home and entered the car in which the victim was sitting.

The attacker allegedly stabbed the victim three to four times with a hunting knife

The attacker allegedly stabbed the victim three to four times with a hunting knife approximately four inches in length. The victim was stabbed in the forearm, knuckle, and thigh.

asked to write an essay which was based on the question "If you could take a trip anywhere in the world, where would it be and why?" I said I wanted to go to Africa because it's so beautiful. I've never been there before."

The winner of the Michigan's Homecoming Queen competition will receive a cash scholarship and an all-expense-paid trip to compete with queens from other states for America's Homecoming Queen in August at the Anaheim Marriot in Anaheim, Calif.

"The Michigan contest involves an interview with the judges and modeling a prom gown," said Bailey. "I've selected a long dress with a lot of beads. It's black and gold with short sleeves."

The participants will not be asked to parade in a swimsuit or demonstrate a specific talent. Michigan Homecoming Queen officials are looking for the all-American girl who wants a career.

Bailey definitely fits that image. She has already been accepted to Michigan State University and intends on majoring in nursing.

"The medical field has always fascinated me," said Bailey. "I enjoy helping people."

The John Glenn senior is very active in her school. She is a cheerleader and a member of the track team as well as a scholastic achiever.

"I'm just glad I have this opportunity to meet more people and have the chance to achieve scholarships," said Bailey.

Inkster auxiliary police officer Willie Haddley who had identified Knox as the gunman in a police lineup and later during the preliminary exam, reiterated his testimony in Hathaway's courtroom, testifying that Knox was the gunman who killed Woodmore during the early morning hours on June 17.

Haddley, in a second Inkster scout car, was the first officer at the scene of the slaying.

Woodmore joined the Inkster police department in 1989 after serving with the Michigan State Police.

Wayne County assistant prosecutor Dan Less said that the professionalism displayed by the Inkster police officers in compiling the evidence helped in the successful prosecution of this case.

"It is a tragedy when such fine officers such as Officer Woodmore are killed in the line of duty because someone wants to make a name for himself," said Less.

Less was critical, however, of the community and neighborhood adjacent to the killing.

"We did not receive much cooperation from the residents in that area, and that is unfortunate."

Inkster Sgt. Lee L. Crump, who was assigned to the case and helped the assistant prosecutor, said that the State Police, specifically Sgt. Leonard Goretzki, played a vital role in helping to bring this case to trial.

Woodmore is the fourth Inkster police officer to be slain in the line of duty since 1987.

Romulus superintendent enters Texas classroom to view new lesson plans

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Fifth graders are reading Shakespeare, and even younger students are able to recite all 50 states and their capitals. Such results from a 99 percent poor Texas school district have grabbed the attention of educators across the country. Daily, approximately 30 visitors enter the Wesley Elementary School in Houston, Texas, to witness the massive educational and disciplinary changes that have occurred within the school since conservative Principal Thaddeus Lott took over 17 years ago.

Among the visitors late last month were Romulus Superintendent Dr. William Bedell, four state board of education members and a state senator. Bedell discussed the Texas school life style last Monday and offered school board members the opportunity to view the video showing the class practices and other aspects of the program.

The success of Lott's program along with low local student Michigan Education

“ We don't need to adopt a program this strict but it is at least a good point to begin our conversation about change.”

Superintendent Dr. William Bedell

Assessment Program (MEAP) test scores will help create a lively debate on the drastic changes needed in the Romulus School District, Bedell said.

“We don't need to adopt a program this strict,” Bedell said, “but it is at least a good point to begin our conversation about change.”

The Lott program has raised the previously poor educational rates at Wesley Elementary to a point now where the school is listed in the top 25 percent profile across the state of Texas.

The heavily regimented school program created by disciplinarian Lott during the last 17 years instills learning as a top priority among the students.

The video shows that students quickly learn the names and capitals of all 50 states.

In the school's financially leaner years this was accomplished without the use of maps, but now takes on even a stronger meaning as the district can now afford to supply maps to students.

Probably one of the most startling elements of the Wesley Elementary curriculum (particularly in this non-reading generation of students nationally) is that fifth graders there read and enjoy works of dramatist William Shakespeare and novelist John Steinbeck.

While critics of the program call it “old fashioned” with its rapid fire drills of repetition, supporters call it successful particularly in the area of educational testing scores.

It also has resulted in lower drop out rates and higher graduation and college entry scores. The program has also gained the support of the parents of the students, as is evidenced by the clothing and demeanor of the students in the classrooms.

Wesley Elementary's success was so strong that critics claimed the district must be “cheating,” but numerous investigations by Texas educational organizations can find no evidence of cheating.

Lott, a tough-talking Afro-American educator, continues to claim “brains do not come in black or white varieties. It is just that too many in society today have too low expectations of poor people.”

The teaching concept is sure to draw fire from some teachers and parents, but local educational leaders say “maybe that is what it takes to create positive change.”

Darts may have motivated slaying

A set of missing darts may have prompted a confrontation that led to the shooting death of Russell Lee Harmon, 25, of Canton Commons.

The victim died of a gunshot wound on Sept. 9, 1994, while sitting on the steps inside his home, according to police reports.

Michael Christopher Warren, 28, of Garden City has been charged in the shooting. The defendant is being examined in 35th District Court in Plymouth to determine whether he should stand trial for the death of Harmon.

Possible incriminating testimony was heard by a former girlfriend of the deceased.

dumped the Brown's body in front of the hospital.

The witnesses told Inkster police that they didn't stick around for the Wayne police because, they said, they were afraid to identify themselves and get involved in a murder investigation.

Shortly after the initial story of the homicide appeared in The Ledger Star, one of six community newspapers published by Michigan Community Newspapers, a woman called Detective Rashad and provided him with the suspect's identify.

Police would not discuss where or when Housch was arrested or whether he resisted. They also would not reveal where he has been hiding for the past five months.

“That will all come out at the trial,” Rashad noted.

Michigan Community Newspapers (Belleville Enterprise, Canton Eagle, Inkster Ledger-Star, Romulus Roman, Wayne Eagle and Westland Eagle) in conjunction with area car dealers announces the $10,000 CAR GIVEAWAY contest.

That's Right! Readers of Michigan Community Newspapers will have the opportunity to win $10,000* (must be utilized towards the purchase or lease of a new or used vehicle from participating auto dealers) in this unique contest that begins January 5 and runs through March 15.

Here's How it Works: Simply cut out the entry blanks below and deposit them in ballot boxes at the respective dealerships. Readers can enter once a week at each of the dealerships, for the ten weeks of the contest. Those that enter more than once a week will be disqualified.

Each week a finalist will be chosen from the entries that are deposited. The grand prize winner will be chosen from the 10 finalists in late March.

So don't be shy. Let's start the new year out right. Start snipping the entry blanks each and every week. You have just as good an opportunity as the next reader to bring home a new car.

This contest requires no purchase. All you need to do is fill out the entry blanks provided and visit your friendly car dealers. The weather may be cold and snowy but the deals are hot and the cars are fun.

*MCN will make your first $10,000 in payments on a vehicle of your choice (purchase or lease) from any of the participating dealers.
